Reading Comprehension Difficulties

Cesare Cornoldi, Jane V. Oakhill, 2013-04-03 Recognizing the characteristics of children with learning disabilities and deciding how to help them is a problem faced by schools all over the world. Although some disorders are fairly easily recognizable e.g. mental retardation or very specific to single components of performance and quite rare e.g. developmental dyscalculia schools must consider much larger populations of children with learning difficulties who cannot always be readily classified. These children present high level learning difficulties that affect their performance on a variety of school tasks but the underlying problem is often their difficulty in understanding written text. In many instances despite good intellectual abilities and a superficial ability to cope with written texts and to use language appropriately some children do not seem to grasp the most important elements or cannot find the pieces of information they are looking for. Sometimes these difficulties are not immediately detected by the teacher in the early school years. They may be hidden because the most obvious early indicators of reading progress in the teacher's eyes do not involve comprehension of written texts or because the first texts a child encounters are quite simple and reflect only the difficulty level of the oral messages sentences short stories etc with which the child is already familiar. However as years go by and texts get more complex comprehension difficulties will become increasingly apparent and increasingly detrimental to effective school learning. In turn studying assimilating new information and many other situations requiring text comprehension from problem solving to reasoning with linguistic contents could be affected. Problems with decoding dyslexia and language disorders have attracted more interest from researchers than have specific comprehension problems and have occupied more room in specialized journals. Normal reading comprehension has also been a favorite with researchers. However scarce interest has been paid to subjects who have comprehension difficulties. This book is an attempt to remedy this situation. In so doing this volume answers the following questions: Does a reading comprehension problem exist in schools? How important and widespread is the problem? Is the problem specific? How can a reading comprehension difficulty be defined and identified? Does the syndrome have a single pattern or can different subtypes be identified? What are the main characteristics associated with a reading comprehension difficulty? When can other well identified problems add to our understanding of reading comprehension difficulties? Which educational strategies are effective in preventing and treating reading comprehension difficulties? What supplementary information can we get from an international perspective?

Handbook of Research on Reading Comprehension, Second Edition Susan E.

Israel, 2017-01-02 This edition provides a transformative snapshot of reading comprehension as a field of study at a seminal moment. It maintains the same high level of standards with respect to 1 historical perspectives useful for laying the foundation of study on reading comprehension 2 theoretical perspectives that allow the reader to consider different views on how specific areas have evolved since the first edition 3 excellent chapters on various elements of reading comprehension including major research studies in assessment cultural impacts of reading comprehension issues affecting English language learners and consideration of international populations and 4 identification of future research needs to help raise important questions and stimulate possible hypotheses for future research      Urban Teens in the Library Denise E. Agosto, Ph.D., Sandra Hughes-Hassell, Ph.D., 2010-01-26 This groundbreaking book is relevant to all librarians working with urban teens and looking for ways to reach out to them      Comparative Research on Education Manfred Niessen, Jules Peschar, 2013-10-22 Comparative Research on Education Overview Strategy and Applications in Eastern and Western Europe is a two part book that first gives an overview and an appraisal of the comparative research on education Then the book presents examples of the type of investigation that is defined as comparative research on education Comparative research studies in Western as well as in Eastern Europe are covered in both parts of the book This book will be useful to students of comparative education as it presents pertinent examples of how empirical methods can be employed in dealing with central problems in education      Civic Literacy Henry Milner, 2002 How civic literacy underpins effective democracies cover

Cultural Literacy E.D. Hirsch, Jr., 1988-04-12 A must read for parents and teachers this major bestseller reveals how cultural literacy is the hidden key to effective education and presents 5000 facts that every literate American should know In this forceful manifesto Professor E D Hirsch Jr argues that children in the United States are being deprived of the basic knowledge that would enable them to function in contemporary society They lack cultural literacy a grasp of background information that writers and speakers assume their audience already has Even if a student has a basic competence in the English language he or she has little chance of entering the American mainstream without knowing what a silicon chip is or when the Civil War was fought An important work that has engendered a nationwide debate on our educational standards Cultural Literacy is a required reading for anyone concerned with our future as a literate nation      Handbook of Research on Reading Comprehension Susan E. Transnational Policy Flows in European Education Andreas Nordin, Daniel Sundberg, 2014-05-12

International comparisons of educational achievements have come to play a crucial role in understanding the educational field today This book provides an in depth analysis of the development of international large scale assessments The lives and achievements of transnational educational experts who paved the way for these assessments are discussed as well as the rise of institutions specialising in the making and managing of educational statistics such as the International Association for the Evaluation of Educational Achievements IEA and the Programme for International Student Assessment PISA supported by the Organisation for Economic Cooperation and Development OECD Emerging transnational policy spaces and their effect on national education policy are also problematised using the concept of Europeanisation as a theoretical reference By bringing together historical and contemporary comparisons using different methodological approaches the goal of this book is to contribute to a widened understanding of educational policy making as an open ended and complex process that cannot be reduced to a rational process of linear implementation or a deduction of world models of education Instead the result of this book shows that transnational policy flows in many directions in European education today and is being negotiated translated interpreted or even contested when recontextualised in different national and or local arenas This book addresses crucial questions on how the landscape and its borders of educational knowledge and policy making have changed over time and place and how the map is currently redrawn in the contemporary globalised educational context It provides important navigational knowledge for students teachers and researchers as well as policy makers at different levels

An Empirical Study of Education in Twenty-one Countries Gilbert Fawcett Peaker, 1975 Technical report on primary education and secondary education in twenty one developing countries and developed countries describes the rationale behind the model used for data analysis advances a model of causation to related input measures to achievement and discusses the compounding of variables survey techniques etc Two page bibliography and statistical tables

Children and Computers in School Betty A. Collis, Gerald A. Knezek, Kwok-Wing Lai, Keiko T. Miyashita, Willem J. Pelgrum, 2013-11-26 This volume integrates research findings from three multinational studies conducted to examine the impact of children s use of computers in school Conclusions are drawn from in depth analyses of trends in more than 20 nations Its seven authors from four nations were key researchers on these projects Both a study and a product of the information age this work is of prime importance to teachers teacher educators and school administrators This work is unique in three important ways it presents data gathered in many regions of the world many of the authors are well known and respected for their previous work in educational studies and the chapters are designed in such a way that the majority of the book is easily accessible to professionals such as classroom teachers who are interested primarily in findings results and outcomes rather than the methodology of the research

Alternative Approaches to the Assessment of Achievement David L. McArthur, 2012-12-06 Ingrained for many years in the science of educational assessment were a large number of truths about how to make sense out of testing results artful wisdoms that appear to have held away largely by force of habit alone Practitioners and researchers only occasionally agreed about how tests should be designed and were even further apart when they came to interpreting test responses by any means other than categorically right or wrong Even the best innovations were painfully slow to be incorporated into practice The traditional approach to testing was developed to accomplish only two tasks to provide ranking of students or to select relatively small proportions of students for special treatment In these tasks it was fairly effective but it is increasingly seen as inadequate for the broader spectrum of issues that educational measurement is now called upon to address Today the range of questions being asked of educational test data is itself growing by leaps and bounds Fortunately to meet this challenge we have available a wide panoply of resource tools for assessment which deserve serious attention Many of them have exceptionally sophisticated mathematical foundations and succeed well where older and less versatile techniques fail dismally Yet no single new tool can conceivably cover the entire arena

Education and Income Distribution in Asia P. Richards, M. Leonor, 2022-08-30 First published in 1981 Education and Income Distribution in Asia looks in detail at a number of aspects of the relation between education employment and income Education is now the major programme of expenditure of governments in Asian countries This book brings case studies from Philippines India Sri Lanka and Thailand to discuss themes like equality in education schooling earnings and occupation educational expansion and the labour market determinants of educational achievement school enrolment in India Sri Lanka and Thailand and educational innovations and inequality This book is a must read for scholars and researchers of education public policy and economics

The IEA Classroom Environment Study Louise Anderson, D.W. Ryan, B.J. Shapiro, 2013-10-22 This book reports the design execution and results of a cross national study of classrooms in eight countries Students were administered tests and completed questionnaires at the beginning and the end of the study Teachers also completed questionnaires Classrooms were visited by trained observers on the average of eight times during the study The data were analyzed in a variety of ways simple summaries sequential analyses and multivariate analyses The results of these analyses are presented and discussed Conclusions based on these findings as well as recommendations for further research are presented

The International

Handbook of Educational Research in the Asia-Pacific Region J.P. Keeves, Ryo Watanabe, 2013-11-11 The aim of the Handbook is to present readily accessible but scholarly sources of information about educational research in the Asia Pacific region. The scale and scope of the Handbook is such that the articles included in it provide substantive contributions to knowledge and understanding of education in the Asia region. In so doing, the articles present the problems and issues facing education in the region and the findings of research conducted within the region that contribute to the resolution of these problems and issues. Moreover, since new problems and issues are constantly arising, the articles in the Handbook also indicate the likely directions of future developments. The different articles within the Handbook seek to conceptualize the problems in each specific content area under review, provide an integration of the research conducted within that area, the theoretical basis of the research, the practical implications of the research, and the contribution of the research towards the resolution of the problems identified. Thus, the articles do not involve the reporting of newly conducted research but rather require a synthesis of the research undertaken in a particular area with reference to the research methods employed and the theoretical frameworks on which the research is based. In general, the articles do not advocate a single point of view but rather present alternative points of view and comment on the debate and disagreements associated with the conduct and findings of the research. Furthermore, it should be noted that the Handbook is not concerned with research methodology and only considers the methods employed in inquiry in so far as the particular methods of research contribute to the effective investigation of problems and issues that have arisen in the conduct and provision of education at different levels within the region.
