Who's in Charge Here? Noel Epstein, 2004-09-27 Few Americans are aware that their nation long ago created a separate government for education supposedly to shield it from political interference Some experts believe that at the heart of today's school debates is a push to put the larger government presidents governors mayors in the drivers seat or even to dump democratic school governance entirely The results are mixed One clear result however is a vexing tangle of authority and accountability Whos in Charge Here untangles it all

Using Data to Improve Student Learning Graham S. Maxwell, 2021-04-21 This book offers a coherent research based overview and analysis of theories and practices in using data to improve student learning It clarifies what use of data means and differentiates the different levels of decision making in education relating to the system district school classroom or individual student The relationship between data and decision making is considered and various movements in the use of data to improve student learning are analysed especially from the perspective of their assumptions and effects This leads to a focus on effective educational decision making as a social process requiring collaboration among all relevant participants It also requires a clear understanding of educational aims and these are seen to transcend what can be assessed by standardised tests The consequences of this analysis for decision processes are explored and conclusions are drawn about what principles might best guide educational practice as well as what ambiguities remain Throughout the focus is on what existing research says about each of the issues explored
