Women Warriors in Romantic Drama Wendy C. Nielsen, 2012-12-06 Women Warriors in Romantic Drama examines a recurring figure that appears in French British and German drama between 1789 and 1830 the woman warrior The term itself woman warrior refers to quasi historical female soldiers or assassins Women have long contributed to military campaigns as canteen women Camp followers ranged from local citizenry to spouses and prostitutes and on occasion women assisted men in combat However the woman warrior is a romantic figure meaning a fanciful ideal despite the reality of women's participation in select scenes of the French Revolution and the Napoleonic Wars The central claim of this book is the woman warrior is a way for some women writers Olympe de Gouges Christine Westphalen Karoline von Gunderode and Mary Robinson to explore the case for extending citizenship to women This project focuses primarily on theater for the reason that the stage simulates the public world that female dramatists and their warriors seek to inhabit Novels and poetry clearly belong to the realm of fiction but when audiences see women fighting onstage they confront concrete visions of impossible women I examine dramas in the context of their performance and production histories in order to answer why so many serious dramas featuring women warriors fail to find applause or fail to be staged at all Dramas about women warriors seem to sometimes contribute to the argument for female citizenship when they take the form of tragedy because the deaths of female protagonists in such plays often provoke consideration about women's place in society Consequently where we find women playing soldiers in various entertainment venues farce and satire often seem to dominate although this book points to some exceptions Censorship and audience demand for comedies made producing tragedies difficult for female playwrights who battled additional obstacles to fashioning their careers I compare male Edmund Eyre Heinrich von Kleist and female writers dramatizations of the woman

warrior This analysis shows that the difficult project of getting audiences to take women warriors seriously resembles women writers struggles to enter the ostensibly male domains of tragedy and the public sphere Published by University of Delaware Press Distributed worldwide by Rutgers University Press Fight Sports and the Church Richard Wolff, 2021-02-26 Fighting sports may seem at odds with Christian tradition yet modern ministries have embraced them as a means for evangelism and social outreach While news media often sensationalize fighting sports churches see them as a way to appeal to male congregants presenting a peace loving yet tough model of discipleship From martial arts programs at suburban churches to urban boxing ministries geared towards at risk youth this book examines the substantial history of church sponsored training in combat sports and presents arguments by Christian ethicists about their compatibility with church teachings and settings Interviews with boxing and martial arts ministry leaders describe their programs and the relationship between fight sports and faith No Atheists in Foxholes Patrick McLaughlin, 2010-04-12 Experience gripping wartime stories and honest prayers by this Camp David chaplain now serving in Iraq When words mean less and less but money talks more and more when blasphemy is a best seller and eternal war has replaced hopeful diplomacy in times like these is prayer even possible Patrick J McLaughlin thinks so McLaughlin is an active duty Navy Chaplain who has ministered to heads of state and to soldiers living and dying in the heat of Iraq No Atheists in Foxholes assembles Chaplain McLaughlin s experiences and prayers from e mails private notes and personal conversations that take us real time into realms of duty and spirit from the quiet darkness of his infant son s New England bedroom on September 11 2001 to the bomshelled medical tents and blistered Army Humvees of Anbar Province Chaplain McLaughlin believes that prayer is not only possible but critical We must all learn to pray for peace he says and then become an answer to that prayer
