Pennsylvania-German Society,1902      Urban Village Population, Community and Family Structure in Germantown Pensylvania 1683-1800 Stephanie Grauman Wolf,1980-05-21 Most studies of eighteenth century community life in America have focused on New England and in many respects the New England town has become a model for our understanding of communities throughout the United States during this period In this study of a mid Atlantic town Stephanie Grauman Wolf describes a very different way of organizing society indicating that the New England model may prove atypical In addition her analysis suggests the origins of twentieth century social patterns in eighteenth century life Germantown Pennsylvania was chosen for study because it was a small urban center characterized by an ethnically and religiously mixed population of high mobility The author uses quantitative analysis and sample case study to examine all aspects of the community She finds that heterogeneity and mobility had a marked effect on urban development on landholding occupation life style and related areas community organization for the control of government and church affairs and the structure and demographic development of the family Her work represents an important advance not only in our understanding of eighteenth century American society but also in the ways in which we investigate it
