comprise Southeast Asia and the current environmental problems and management practices which have arisen in this part of the world. The book is in three sections. The first section introduces the basic environmental components: geology, landforms, rivers, vegetation, and others across the entire region. The second section discusses specific environments that are characteristic of this assemblage of continental and maritime landscapes: volcanic islands, coastal environment, granitic terrains, karst, etc. The third and final section illustrates the ecological relationship between the environment and people: volcanic hazards, urban environment, coastal zone development, coral reefs, and others. The physical environment of Southeast Asia is examined at different levels, covering a world region that ranges from ancient stable landmasses to dynamic unstable plate boundaries, from aged primary rainforests to lush vibrant resource-demanding built environments. Southeast Asia has been perceived as a laboratory for studying plate tectonics. It is an assemblage of large river basins, peninsulas, and archipelagos and seas surrounded by islands. It is an area of great physical variations where parts of the physical environment have been significantly degraded anthropogenically following rapid population growth and development. In large parts of the region, the forms and processes on land and offshore should no longer be seen as entirely natural. As this book repeatedly illustrates, plate tectonics and people are both important contributors to the physical geography of Southeast Asia. The contributors to this volume are distinguished scholars and have a long association with Southeast Asia. The chapters are not only skilfully built on state-of-the-art research findings but also include new material from the on-going research activities of the authors. The book goes beyond being the first comprehensive and detailed volume of the biophysical geography of Southeast Asia in that it also deals with the tropical environment and the relationship between environment and people in a rapidly developing world region.

Agricultural Economics and Rural Sociology Wallace C. Olsen, 1991. The first of an eight volume series. The Literature of the Agricultural Sciences. This book analyzes the trends in the published literature of agricultural economics and rural sociology during the past fifty years. It uses citation analysis and other bibliometric techniques to identify the primary journals, report series, and monographs of current importance to the developed industrial countries as well as those in the Third World.

The Future Population of the World Wolfgang Lutz, 2013-11-05. The highly acclaimed The Future Population of the World contains the most authoritative assessment available of the extent to which population is likely to grow over the next 50 to 100 years. The book provides a thorough analysis of all the components of population change and translates these factors into a series of projections for the population of the world's regions. This revised and updated version incorporates completely new scenario projections based on updating starting values and revised assumptions, plus several methodological improvements. It also contains the best currently available information on global trends in AIDS mortality and the first ever fully probabilistic world population projections. The projections given up to 2100 add important additional features to those of the UN and the World Bank: they show the impacts of alternative assumptions for all three components: mortality and migration as well as fertility; they explicitly take into account possible environmental limits to growth and for the first time they define confidence levels for global populations Combining methodological innovation with overviews of the most recent data and literature this updated edition of The Future Population of the World is sure to conform its reputation as the most comprehensive and essential publication in the field Report on the Agro-Ecological Zones Project - V.4 - Results For Southeast Asia Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations,1978 Report on the Agro-ecological Zones Project Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations,1978
