Cost Effective Energy Efficient Building Retrofitting aims to provide building researchers and practitioners with a better understanding of how to effectively conduct commercial retrofit to promote energy conservation and sustainability including real world cases Several general design strategies are provided in the successful completion of sustainable and energy efficient retrofit projects It explores the current market size and why the building retrofit market has not expanded as much in past years Review of past practice and research efforts reveals that though a building retrofit project especially a deep retrofit project is no different than any investment case in business practice past retrofit projects are rarely motivated and convinced by the cost effectiveness of the project but more by building owners desire to green the building
