Abstract. The fulfillment of the right to education for persons with disabilities has been guaranteed in the 1945 Constitution Article 31 paragraph (1) which states that every citizen has the right to education. This phrase in principle places the entirety of Indonesian citizens without exception getting the right to education. If you look at Law Numbers. 20 Of 2003 concerning the National Education System (Uu Sisdiknas) disability education is directed at special education. This has explicitly fulfilled the right to disability education, but special education creates a pattern of segregation and discrimination due to the grouping of learners who seem to place people with disabilities in a special group and separate from the non-disability group. This research is categorized into normative legal research types based on issues and or themes raised as research topics using philosophical and analytical research approaches that are analyzed descriptively analytically. The results showed that the national education law still follows the old pattern of segregative education by placing persons with disabilities in the exclusiveness of special education which results in disparative actions, this is because the National Education Law does not provide space for inclusive education which causes regular schools to have reasons to reject students with disabilities. In addition, there is a vagueness of norms in the National Education Law precisely in the explanation of the article that places inclusive education as part of special education which is actually different in meaning, concept and purpose. Therefore, the vagueness and limited concept of inclusive education in the National Education Law has an impact on the segregation and discrimination of persons with disabilities.
