Reviving America's Forgotten Neighborhoods Elise M. Bright, 2003 First Published in 2003 Routledge is an imprint of Taylor Francis an informa company Urban Research Monitor, 1998 Giving Preservation a History Randall F. Mason, Max Page, 2019-10-21 In this volume some of the leading figures in the field have been brought together to write on the roots of the historic preservation movement in the United States ranging from New York to Santa Fe Charleston to Chicago Giving Preservation a History explores the long history of historic preservation how preservation movements have taken a leading role in shaping American urban space and development how historic preservation battles have reflected broader social forces and what the changing nature of historic preservation means for efforts to preserve national urban and local heritage The second edition adds several new essays addressing key developing areas in the field by major new voices The new essays represent the broadening range of scholarship on historic preservation generated since the publication of the first edition taking better account of the role of cultural diversity and difference within the field while exploring the connections between preservation and allied concerns such as environmental sustainability LGBTQ and nonwhite identity and economic development The University and Urban Revival Judith Rodin, 2015-12-04 In the last quarter of the twentieth century urban colleges and universities found themselves enveloped by the poverty crime and physical decline that afflicted American cities Some institutions turned inward trying to insulate themselves rather than address the problems in their own backyards Others attempted to develop better community relations though changes were hard to sustain Spurred by an unprecedented crime wave in 1996 University of Pennsylvania President Judith Rodin knew that the time for urgent action had arrived and she set a new course of proactive community engagement for her university Her dedication to the revitalization of West Philadelphia was guided by her role not only as president but also as a woman and a mother with a deep affection for her hometown The goal was to build capacity back into a severely distressed inner city neighborhood educational capacity retail capacity quality of life capacity and especially economic capacity guided by the belief that town and gown could unite as one richly diverse community Cities rely on their academic institutions as stable places of employment cultural centers civic partners and concentrated populations of consumers for local business and services And a competitive university demands a vibrant neighborhood to meet the needs of its faculty staff and students In keeping with their mission urban universities are uniquely positioned to lead their communities in revitalization efforts yet this effort requires resolute persistence During Rodin's administration 1994-2004 the Chronicle of Higher Education referred to Penn's progress as a national model of constructive town gown interaction and partnership This book narrates the challenges frustrations and successes of Penn's campaign and its prospects for long term change The New American Suburb Katrin B. Anacker, 2016-03-03 The majority of Americans live in suburbs and until about a decade or so ago most suburbs had been assumed to be non Hispanic White affluent and without problems However recent data have shown that there are changing trends among U S suburbs This book provides timely analyses of current suburban issues by utilizing recently published data from the 2010 Census and American Community Survey to address key themes including suburban poverty racial and ethnic change and suburban decline suburban foreclosures and suburban policy

Transforming Distressed Global Communities Fritz Wagner, Riad Mahayni, Andreas Piller, 2016-03-09

Many of our global cities are distressed and facing a host of issues economic collapse in the face of rising expectations social disintegration and civil unrest and ecological degradation and the threats associated with climate change including more frequent and more severe natural disasters Our long held assumptions about man and nature and how they interact are defunct We realize now that we can no longer continue to build without addressing the long term impacts of our actions and their spillovers Energy and natural resources are finite The way we configure economies has come into question

In the developed world especially in the United States infrastructure and the notions that underpin it are outdated. Meanwhile the developing world is experiencing major rapid transformations in lifestyles and economies that are affecting billions of people and requiring a whole new way of planning human settlements. Cities are the key to our future; they represent the most effective vehicle for positive advancements in the human condition and environmental change. This volume argues for the need to redesign and re-plan our cities in holistic ways that reflect our new understanding and relate to their diversity and multi dimensionality. Presenting a range of case studies from around the world, this volume examines how these distressed cities are dealing with these issues in planning for their future. Alongside these empirical chapters are philosophical essays that consider the future of distressed cities. Bringing together a team of leading scholars, United Nations agencies, non governmental organizations, private consulting firms, international organizations and foundations, and policy officials, this volume provides a unique and comprehensive overview on how to transform distressed communities into more livable places.

Human Capital Investment for Central City Revitalization Fritz Wagner, Timothy Joder, Anthony Mumphrey Jr., 2013-05-13 Viewing poverty as a condition that is fed and renewed on a daily basis by social and economic structures, this book focuses on the ways in which poor residents can be helped to improve their own situations, their living conditions, and the central city itself. Also includes four maps.

Sunburnt Cities Justin B. Hollander, 2011-01-18 In recent years there has been a growing focus on urban and environmental studies and the skills and techniques needed to address the wider challenges of how to create sustainable communities. Central to that demand is the increasing urgency of addressing the issue of urban decline and the response has almost always been to pursue growth policies to attempt to reverse that decline. The track record of growth policies has been mixed at best. Until the first decade of the twenty first century decline was assumed to be an issue only for former industrial cities, the so called Rust Belt. But the sudden reversal in growth in the major cities of the American Sunbelt has shown that urban decline can be a much wider issue. Justin Hollander's research into urban decline in both the Sun and Rust Belts draws lessons, planners and policy makers that can be applied universally. Hollander addresses the reasons and statistics behind these shrinking cities with a positive outlook, arguing that growth for growth's sake is not beneficial for communities, suggesting instead that urban development could be achieved through shrinkage. Case studies on Phoenix, Flint, Orlando and Fresno support the argument, and Hollander delves into the numbers, literature, and individual lives affected, and how they have changed in response to the declining regions. Written for urban scholars and to suit a wide range of courses focused on contemporary urban studies, this text forms a base for all study on shrinking cities for professionals, academics, and students in urban design, planning, public administration, and sociology.

Making Our Neighborhoods, Making Our Selves George C. Galster, 2019-03-13 Drawing on economics, sociology, geography, and psychology, Galster delivers a clear sighted explanation of what neighborhoods are, how they come to be, and what they should be. Urban theorists have tried for decades to define exactly what a neighborhood is. But behind that daunting existential question lies a much murkier problem never mind how you define them how do you make neighborhoods productive and fair for their residents In Making Our Neighborhoods Making Our Selves George C Galster delves deep into the question of whether American neighborhoods are as efficient and equitable as they could be socially financially and emotionally and if not what we can do to change that Galster aims to redefine the relationship between places and people promoting specific policies that reduce inequalities in housing markets and beyond
