Scent The Mysterious And Essential Powers Of Smell:

Scent Annick Le Gu  rer,1993      Common Scents Janice Carlisle,2004-02-19 Who smells Surveying nearly eighty novels written in the 1860s to answer that impolite question Common Scents provides a new reading of Victorian values particularly as they assess the relative merits of men and women spirit and matter In depictions of comparative encounters the commonplace meetings of everyday life such fiction often registers the inequalities that distinguish one individual from another by marking one of them with a smell In a surprisingly consistent fashion these references constitute what cultural anthropologists call an osmology a system of differentiations that reveals the status within a particular culture of the persons and things associated with specific odors Featuring often innocuous and even potentially pleasing aromas emanating from food flowers and certain kinds of labor novels of the 1860s array their characters into distinct categories finding in some rather than others olfactory proof of their materiality Central to this osmology is the difference between characters who give off odors and those who do not and this study draws upon the work of Victorian psychophysicists and popular commentators on the senses to establish the subtlety with which fictional representations make that distinction By exploring the far reaching implications of this osmology in specific novels by Dickens Eliot Meredith Oliphant Trollope and Yonge Common Scents argues that the strikingly similar plots and characterizations typical of the 1860s responding as they do to the economic and political concerns of the decade reconfigure conventional understandings of the relations between men and women Determining who smells reveals what Victorian culture at its epitome takes for granted as a deeply embedded common sense the recognition of whose self evident truth seems to be as instinctive and automatic as a response to an odor

Elixir Theresa Levitt, 2023-04-25 A story of alchemy in Bohemian Paris where two scientific outcasts discovered a fundamental distinction between natural and synthetic chemicals that inaugurated an enduring scientific mystery For centuries scientists believed that living matter possessed a special quality a spirit or essence that differentiated it from nonliving matter But by the nineteenth century the scientific consensus was that the building blocks of one were identical to the building blocks of the other Elixir tells the story of two young chemists who were not convinced and how their work rewrote the boundary between life and nonlife In the 1830s douard Laugier and Auguste Laurent were working in Laugier P re et Fils the oldest perfume house in Paris By day they prepared the perfumery's revitalizing elixirs and rejuvenating eaux drawing on alchemical traditions that equated a plant's vitality with its aroma. In their spare time they hunted the vital force that promised to reveal the secret to life itself. Their ideas roundly condemned by established chemists led to the discovery of structural differences between naturally occurring molecules and their synthetic counterparts even when the molecules were chemically identical. Scientists still can't explain this anomaly but it may point to critical insights concerning the origins of life on Earth. Rich in sparks and smells brimming with eccentric characters, experimental daring, and the romance of the Bohemian salon, Elixir is a fascinating cultural and scientific history.

Intercultural Communication James W. Neuliep, 2012. In this fully updated Fifth Edition of Intercultural Communication, author James W. Neuliep provides a clear contextual circular model for examining communication within cultural, micro-cultural, environmental, socio-relational, perceptual contexts, and verbal and nonverbal codes. The text begins with the broadest context, the cultural component of the model, and progresses chapter by chapter through each component of the model. The later chapters then apply the model to the development and maintenance of intercultural relationships, the management of intercultural conflict, intercultural management, intercultural adaptation, culture shock, and intercultural competence.

Driven by Fear Guenter B. Risse, 2015-12-30. From the late nineteenth century until the 1920s, authorities required San Francisco's Pesthouse to segregate the diseased from the rest of the city. Although the Pesthouse stood out of sight and largely out of mind, it existed at a vital nexus of civic life where issues of medicine, race, class, environment, morality, and citizenship entwined and played out. Guenter B. Risse places this forgotten institution within an emotional climate dominated by widespread public dread and disgust. In Driven by Fear, he analyzes the unique form of stigma generated by San Franciscans. Emotional states like xenophobia and racism played a part. Yet the phenomenon also included competing medical paradigms and unique economic needs that encouraged authorities to protect the city's reputation as a haven of health restoration. As Risse argues, public health history requires an understanding of irrational as well as rational motives. To that end, he delves into the spectrum of emotions that drove extreme measures like segregation and isolation and fed psychological, ideological, and pragmatic urges to scapegoat and stereotype victims, particularly Chinese victims of smallpox, leprosy, plague, and syphilis. Filling a significant gap in contemporary scholarship, Driven by Fear looks at the past to offer critical lessons for our age of bioterror threats and emerging infectious diseases.
