Screen Tastes From Soap Opera To Satellite Dishes:

Screen Tastes Charlotte Brunsdon, 2005-07-26 Charlotte Brunsdon's key writings on film and television are brought together with new introductions which contextualise and update the arguments. The focus is on the tastes and pleasures of the female consumer as she is produced by popular film and television. Prime Time Soap Operas on Indian Television Shoma Munshi, 2020-02-18 This book examines the phenomenon of prime time soap operas on Indian television. An anthropological insight into social issues and practices of contemporary India through the television, this volume analyzes the production of soaps within India's cultural fabric. It deconstructs themes and issues surrounding the everyday and the middle class through the fiction of the popular. In its second edition, this still remains the only book to examine prime time soap operas on Indian television. Without in any way changing the central arguments of the first edition, it adds an essential introductory chapter tracking the tectonic shifts in the Indian mediascape over the past decade, including how the explosion of regional language channels and an era of multiple screens have changed soap viewing forever. Meticulously researched and persuasively argued, the book traces how prime time soaps in India still grab the maximum eyeballs and remain the biggest earners for TV channels. The book will be of interest to students of anthropology and sociology, media and cultural studies, visual culture studies, gender and family studies, and also Asian studies in general. It is also an important resource for media producers both in content production and television channels, as well as for the general reader. REDESIGNING WOMEN Amanda D. Lotz, 2010-10-01 In the 1990s, American television audiences witnessed an unprecedented rise in programming devoted explicitly to women. Cable networks such as Oxygen Media, Women's Entertainment Network, and Lifetime targeted a female audience, and prime time dramatic series such as Buffy the Vampire Slayer, Judging Amy, Gilmore Girls, Sex and the City, and Ally McBeal empowered heroines, single career women, and professionals struggling with family commitments and occupational demands. After establishing this phenomenon's significance, Amanda D. Lotz explores the audience profile, the types of narrative and characters that recur, and changes to the industry landscape in the wake of media consolidation and a profusion of channels. Employing a cultural studies framework, Lotz examines whether the multiplicity of female-centric networks and narratives renders certain gender stereotypes uninhabitable and how new dramatic portrayals of women have redefined narrative conventions. Redesigning Women also reveals how these changes led to narrowcasting or the targeting of a niche segment of the overall audience and the ways in which the new sophisticated portrayals of women inspire sympathetic identification while also commodifying viewers into a marketable demographic for advertisers. A Taste for Gardening Lisa Taylor, 2016-03-16 Is the garden a consumption site where identities are constructed? Do gardeners make aesthetic choices according to how they are positioned by class and gender? This book presents the first scholarly analysis of the relationship between media interest in gardening and cultural identities. With an examination of aesthetic dispositions as a symbolic mode of communication closely aligned to people's identities and drawing on ethnographic data gathered from encounters with gardeners this book maps a typology of gardening taste revealing that gardening how plants are chosen planted and cared for is a classed and gendered practice manifested in specific types of visual aesthetics This timely and original book develops a new area within cultural studies while contributing to debates about lifestyle and lifestyle media consumption class and methodology A must read for anybody concerned with or intrigued by the cultural construction of identification practices
