Screening The Past Film And The Representation Of History:

Screening the Past Tony Barta, 1998-08-20 Film and television have been accepted as having a pervasive influence on how people understand the world. An important aspect of this is the relationship of history and film. The different views of the past created by film, television and video are only now attracting closer attention from historians, cultural critics and filmmakers. This volume seeks to advance the critical exploration scholars have recently begun. Barta begins by addressing the various ways the past is screened for our understanding and relates the art of film to other media. The essays that follow deal primarily with the changing perspectives of political and social developments and changing concepts of ideology, gender or culture in films and television programs made for historically shaped reasons. Chapters by filmmakers explore issues of context and intent in their own projects. Scholars and general readers interested in film and cultural studies will find this an important volume.

History on Film/Film on History Robert A. Rosenstone, 2003-11-30 History on Film/Film on History has established itself as a classic treatise on the historical film and its role in bringing the past to life. In the fourth edition of this widely acclaimed text, Robert A. Rosenstone argues that to leave history films out of the discussion of the meaning of the past is to ignore a major means of understanding historical events. This book examines what history films convey about the past and how they convey it, demonstrating the need to learn how to read and understand this new visual world and integrating detailed analysis of films such as Schindler's List, Glory, October and Reds. Advocating for the dramatic feature as a legitimate way of doing history, this edition includes a new Preface and a new chapter that focuses on films produced in Latin America, Africa, the Middle East, India and East Asia. Examining the codes and conventions of how these films tell us about the past and providing guidance on how to effectively analyse films as historical interpretations, this book is an essential introduction to the field for students of history and film.

The Changing Face of Evil in Film and Television Martin F. Norden, 2007 The popular media of film and television surround us daily with images of evil, images that have often gone critically unexamined. In the belief that people in ever increasing numbers are turning to the media for their understanding of evil, this lively and provocative collection of essays addresses the changing representation of evil in a broad spectrum of films and television programmes. Written in refreshingly accessible and de-jargonised prose, the essays bring to bear a variety of philosophical and critical perspectives on works ranging from the cinema of famed director Alfred Hitchcock and the preternatural horror films Halloween and Friday the 13th to the understated documentary Human Remains and the television coverage of the immediate post-9/11 period. The Changing Face of Evil in Film and Television is for anyone interested in the moving image representation of that pervasive yet highly misunderstood thing we call evil.

Bringing History to Life through Film Kathryn Anne Morey, 2013-12-12 Whether re creating an actual event or simply being set in a bygone era films have long taken liberties with the truth While some members of the audience can appreciate a movie without being distracted by historical inaccuracies other viewers are more discerning From revered classics like Gone with the Wind to recent award winners like Argo Hollywood films often are taken to task for their loose adherence to the facts But what obligation do filmmakers have to the truth when trying to create a two hour piece of entertainment In Bringing History to Life through Film The Art of Cinematic Storytelling Kathryn Anne Morey brings together essays that explore the controversial issue of film as a purveyor of history Examining a range of films including highly regarded features like The Last of the Mohicans and Pan's Labyrinth as well as blockbuster franchises like Pirates of the Caribbean chapters demonstrate that the debate surrounding the role of history on film is still as raw as ever Organized in five sections these essays discuss the myths and realities of history as they are portrayed on film from Nostalgic Utopias to Myths and Fairy Tales The fourteen chapters shed light on how films both convey and distort historical realities to capture the essence of the past rather than the past itself Ultimately they consider what role cinema plays as the quintessential historical storyteller In addition to cinema and media studies this book will appeal to scholars of history and fans of a wide range of cinematic genres

Women's Memory D. Fatma Türe, Fatma Türe, 2011-07-12 Women's archives appear to have been largely disregarded until the last couple of decades. Most countries lack well documented archives and the question of methodology has become a common concern and ever more significant for researchers. Aiming to contribute to the growing efforts of developing women's archives, the present book brings together the works of numerous researchers from various disciplines. The researchers contributed to this volume in order to share information and experiences about the problems of sources and archives in women's studies. The articles in the book not only analyse the problems encountered by researchers in the field of women's studies but also examine perceptions of women in collective memories. The book comprises five parts: Women's Archives and Women's Libraries; Art, Literature and Journal Letters and Petitions; Oral History and Cinema. All the articles present fresh ideas on the collective memory, perceptions, experiences and the collection of documents on women. Reframing the Past Mia E. M. Treacey, 2016-02-26 Reframing the Past traces what historians have written about film and television from 1898 until the early 2000s. Mia Treacey argues that historical engagement with film and television should be reconceptualised as Screened History, an interdisciplinary international field of research to incorporate and replace what has been known as History and Film. It draws from the fields of Film, Television and Cultural Studies to critically analyse key works and connect past scholarship with contemporary research. Reconsidered as Screened History, the works of Pierre Sorlin, Marc Ferro, John O'Connor, Robert Rosenstone and Robert Toplin are explored alongside lesser known but equally important contributions. This book identifies a number of common themes and ideas that have been explored by historians for decades: the use of history on film and television as a way to teach the past; the challenge of filmic and televisual history to more traditional historiography; and an ongoing battle to find an appropriate historical way to engage with Film Studies and Theory. Screened History offers an approach to exploring History, Film and Television that allows room for future developments while connecting them to a rich and diverse body of past scholarship. Combining a narrative of historical research on film and television over the past century with a reconceptualisation of the field as Screened History Reframing the Past is essential reading both for established scholars of History and Film Film History and other related disciplines and to students new to the field Historical Dictionary of Holocaust Cinema Robert C.
