Biography, French, the study of a person's life, from birth to death, usually written by a biographer. The word is derived from the Greek bios (life) and grapho (to write). The first biographies were written by ancient Greek and Roman historians. The modern biography is a more detailed and often more critical study of a person's life. It may include a person's childhood, education, career, and death. The biography is a popular form of literature, and many famous people have been the subject of biographies.

Architecture, the art or science of designing and constructing buildings. It involves the use of materials, space, and light to create a functional and aesthetically pleasing environment. Architecture is a discipline that combines art and science. It is a profession that requires a high level of skill and creativity. The architect is responsible for the overall design and construction of a building. They work closely with engineers, contractors, and other professionals to bring their vision to life. Architecture is a field that has evolved over time, reflecting the changing needs and tastes of society.
