Reflections Notes Of A Psychologist:

Reflections on the Principles of Psychology Michael G. Johnson, Tracy B. Henley, 2013-04-15 This important volume looks back to 1890 and 100 years later asks some of the same questions William James was asking in his Principles of Psychology In so doing it reviews our progress toward their solutions Among the contemporary concerns of 1990 that the editors consider are the nature of the self and the will conscious experience associationism the basic acts of cognition and the nature of perception Their findings Although the developments in each of these areas during the last 100 years have been monumental James views as presented in the Principles still remain viable and provocative To provide a context for understanding James some chapters are devoted primarily to recent scholarship about James himself focusing on the time the Principles was written relevant intellectual influences and considerations of his understanding of this new science of psychology The balance of this volume is devoted to specific topics of particular interest to James One critical theme woven into almost every chapter is the tension between the role of experience or phenomenological data within a scientific psychology and the viability of a materialistic or biologically reductive account of mental life Written for professionals practitioners and students of psychology in all disciplines Reflections Wallace K. Handbook of Clinical Health Psychology C. Green, R. Meagher, T. Millon, 2012-12-06 We seek to throw down the gauntlet with this handbook challenging the hegemony of the behavioral medicine approach to the psychological study and treatment of the physically ill This volume is not another in that growing surfeit of texts that pledge allegiance to the doctrinaire purity of behavioristic thinking or conceptualize their subject in accord with the sterility of medical models Diseases are not our focus nor is the narrow band of behavioral assessment and therapy methodologies Rather we have sought to redefine this amorphous yet burgeoning field so as to place it squarely within the province of a broadly based psychology specifically the emerging substantive discipline of health psychology and the well established professionalism and diverse technologies of clinical psychology The handbook's title Clinical Health Psychology reflects this reorientation explicitly and Chapter 1 addresses its themes and provides its justifications more fully In the process of developing a relevant and comprehensive health assessment tool the editors were struck by the failure of clinical psychologists to avail themselves of the rich vein of materials that comprise the psychosocial world of the physically ill Perhaps more dismaying was the observation that this field was being mined less than optimally by physicians and nonclinical psychologists Naming the Mind Kurt Danziger, 1997-05-06 In Naming the Mind Kurt Danziger examines the origins and presuppositions underlying psychological categories from stimulus response to personality motivation and cognition research focused on the importance and effectiveness of a paradigm shift in education that involves student teacher partnerships fueled by innovative teaching and learning designs where students take an active role and contribute as partners in learning Transforming Curriculum Through Teacher Learner Partnerships captures experiences and evidence among teachers in exploring the possibility of active student participation in curriculum design delivery and assessment through teacher learner partnership The chapters address issues of teacher learner partnerships in designing the learning environment and how student centered methods create resilient adaptable and future capable learners While highlighting topics within this scope such as learner autonomy learning performance self efficacy and teaching pedagogy this book is ideally intended for teachers administrators teacher educators practitioners stakeholders researchers academicians and students interested in issues related to the teacher learner partnership
