

Electricity industry reform and regulation/1

- The reform of electricity markets encompasses a wide range of measures.
- In general electricity industry restructuring implied:
 - ✓ a separate transmission company;
 - ✓ partially or totally privately owned generation companies;
 - ✓ competition in generation;
 - ✓ retail supply opened to competition;
 - ✓ privately owned transmission and distribution network with third party access based on published and non-discriminatory terms and conditions.
- Electricity industry restructuring has been accompanied also by the reform of the institutional design resulting in a set of institutional bodies:
 - ✓ ministry handling most regulatory responsibilities directly;
 - ✓ independent regulatory agencies separate from ministry taking care of some particular responsibilities operating on the base of public consultation and other procedures meant to enhance transparency;
 - ✓ presence of ministerial regulatory agencies subordinated to the ministry but operating autonomously in the management of regulatory affairs.

Reform Restructuring Of The Gas Indust:

National Reforms in European Gas M. Arentsen, R. Kunneke, 2003-08-14 Focussing on the change and development of national gas markets in Europe this book provides an overview analysis and comparison of recent dynamics in several national gas markets at a time of very rapid change within this industry This overview provides a better understanding of current events and future evolution in the European gas business What can be expected at the European level given the recent trends and dynamics in national gas markets in Europe How did countries respond to the EU gas directive and why What are the important barriers to a harmonised European gas market from the perspective of national developments This book tackles these and related questions Written by experts across the field of energy policy and reform this publication will be an invaluable resource for social scientists studying the ongoing reform process in energy markets as well as industry analysts consultants policy makers and utility companies worldwide Reform and Restructuring of the Gas Industry in Economies in Transition, 1996 Reforming and Restructuring the Federal Government United States.

Congress. Senate. Committee on Governmental Affairs, 1996 Natural Gas Services: Recent Reforms in Selected Markets, Inv. 332-426, The Future of Russian Gas and Gazprom Jonathan P. Stern, 2005 The Russian gas industry provides 50% of Russian domestic energy supplies a substantial proportion of CIS gas supplies and around 20% of European gas demand Declines in production at existing fields mean that Gazprom will face increasingly difficult decisions about moving to higher cost fields on the Yamal Peninsula The alternative will be increasing imports from Central Asian countries and allowing other Russian gas producers to increase their role in the industry Russian exports to Europe will gradually increase and deliveries of Russian LNG will commence to Asia and the both coasts of North America Pipeline gas deliveries to East Asian countries may have a longer time horizon Export projects aimed at new markets will depend crucially on the maintenance of oil and gas prices at the levels of 2003 05 European exports will also depend on the pace of EU market liberalisation and Gazprom's ability to agree mutually acceptable terms for transit principally with Ukraine and Belarus Reform liberalisation and restructuring of the Russian gas industry have been more substantial than has generally been recognised Most important has been price reform which in 2005 allowed Russian industrial customers to become profitable to serve at regulated prices Price increases may significantly reduce future increases in domestic gas demand The increasing need for production from companies other than Gazprom will ensure that liberalised access to networks expands considerably over the next decade In the 2000s Gazprom reclaimed its CIS gas business from intermediaries while maintaining its de facto monopoly of exports to Europe and establishing a similar degree of authority over future exports to Asia The merger of Gazprom and Rosneft will provide the potential to become a force in the domestic and international oil markets particularly given the authority that the president has conferred on the company in terms of Russian energy policy infrastructure policies is a controversial issue in the transition economies of Eastern Europe where the dismal state of infrastructure was widely regarded to be one of the major obstacles to economic recovery and sustained growth. With the imminent enlargement of the EU, Christian von Hirschhausen provides a detailed reflective analysis of the state of infrastructure development in Eastern Europe.

Modernizing Infrastructure in Transformation Economies Christian von Hirschhausen, 2002-01-01 The design of

The Economics of the Gas Supply Industry Malcolm Abbott, 2016-05-12

In recent years, natural gas has become a major source of energy, with trade across borders increasing through both pipelines and as Liquefied Natural Gas (LNG). Owing to this global development, this book traces the development of the gas supply industry from localised to national industries and national industries to a major global industry. It looks at the basic economics and origins of the industry as well as the role of the government in its development and relation to international markets. The book highlights certain economic characteristics such as the industry's vertical and horizontal structure, the composition of consumer demand, and the role of government in safety planning and investment. With the understanding of the industry's long-term development, the book helps to illustrate the relationship between natural gas producers and importers of LNG. This book would be of interest to scholars majoring in resource economics and energy economics as well as to international practitioners in the natural gas market.

Regulating Gas Liberalization Anton Ming-Zhi Gao, 2010-01-01

La 4e de couverture indique: Along with aviation and telecommunications, the gas supply chain has proved to be one of the paradigmatic factors in the great transformation in regulated industry law that has characterized recent decades. The liberalization in the gas market has taken two primary legal forms: i) removal of entry barriers in competitive sectors and ii) regulation of infrastructure sectors through unbundling, economic separation of competitive and infrastructure sectors, and open access requiring gas infrastructure owners/operators to allow competitors to access their facilities on commercial terms comparable to those that would apply in a competitive market. This book will focus on the latter legal form. This is the first book to analyze in a comparative way the detailed development of the unbundling and open access regimes across three continents. It is the author's contention that these two legal forms should be more widely implemented than they are at present. In each of five substantial chapters on the United States, Europe, Japan, South Korea, and Taiwan, the author first focuses on the proposed or current laws and industrial practices on service, account, functional, legal, and ownership unbundling and independent system operator, and then on those of different open access regimes, mainly including regulated and negotiated third-party access insofar as they have been developed in each location. Using empirical evidence from Europe, the United States, and Japan, that a well-formulated and comprehensive liberalization can bring about more advantages than disadvantages, he shows how well-designed unbundling and open access regimes may accomplish the following: inject much needed competition into gas exploration exploitation import production and retailing reform and re regulate non competitive sectors such as transportation distribution and storage balance potential conflicts between energy security and competition and support interests such as environmental protection energy rights safety and consumer protection The author attends throughout to the contrasting market situations in countries that rely on importing natural gas by liquefied natural gas tankers LNG countries and countries with their natural gas mainly coming from production fields via direct pipelines PNG countries Identifying the key legal issues arising from the development of the various unbundling and open access regimes discussed the book goes on to provide a detailed general legislative framework for gas liberalization that applies especially to LNG countries The author finds perhaps surprisingly that both LNG countries and PNG countries can in fact learn from each other This book will be a key reference for anyone interested in the legal issues of gas liberalization and will also provide the international energy community with keen insight into the unbundling and open access regimes in the United States Europe Japan South Korea and Taiwan Policymakers around the world will discover an excellent framework for launching or improving a gas liberalization scheme

Ukraine International Monetary Fund. European Dept.,2017-04-04 Following the 2014 15 crisis the economy is growing again and tight fiscal and monetary policies have greatly reduced internal and external imbalances Inflation has been successfully brought down and reserves while still being relatively low have doubled to US 15 billion The pace of the recovery however has been modest and faster growth is needed if Ukraine is to catch up with its regional peers and lift per capita income levels that have declined to among the lowest in the region
