Abstract. The strategy of rural revitalisation was proposed by Comrade Xi Jinping in the report of the 19th Party Congress, aiming at "comprehensive revitalisation of the countryside", "integrated development of urban and rural areas" and "harmonious coexistence of human beings and nature" as the development concept. The academic research on rural tourism in China has gradually developed from the initial agricultural tourism to the integration of ecological environment, folk culture and B&B industry. Although the concepts of rural revitalization and rural tourism have different understandings, they have many similarities in the construction and transformation of villages, and both have a positive impact on the economic development of villages. Combining the knowledge of multiple disciplines such as agronomy, tourism, ecology and statistics, a hierarchical structure model of the evaluation index system for the coupled development of rural revitalization and rural tourism is constructed by means of expert opinion solicitation, and the importance values of the evaluation indexes are obtained in comparison with each other. The quantitative evaluation table of rural revitalization and rural tourism development is compiled and formed to provide theoretical suggestions for the development of rural revitalization and rural tourism.

1 Introduction

Rural revitalization and rural tourism essentially belong to two systems, so their development in the same rural area is not necessarily balanced. This paper establishes an evaluation index system for the coupled development of rural revitalization and rural tourism from the perspective of viewing the two systems and uses the AHP method to calculate the weight values of the index elements at each level by means of expert assignment of scores, and finally obtains the weight values of each evaluation index and the ranking of the total weight value of each evaluation index [1]. Based on the total ranking of the weight values of the evaluation indicators, the opinion and countermeasure for the coupled development of rural revitalisation and rural tourism are proposed. It is hoped that by promoting the modernisation of rural agriculture and the integrated development of the agriculture, culture and tourism industries, the quality and efficiency of regional development in rural areas will be improved, the level of public service facilities supply in rural areas will be further enhanced, the branding of rural specialties and culture will be co-ordinated, the integrated construction of urban and rural areas will be actively promoted, and finally the quality and efficient coupling development of rural revitalisation and rural tourism will be realised [2].

2 Promoting the modernisation of rural agriculture

The development of rural industries and the modernisation of agriculture are mutually reinforcing relationships. The distribution of China's agricultural structure is dominated by agriculture, forestry, animal husbandry and fishery. As one of the world's four ancient civilisations, China has a long history, the rich natural resources and vast national boundaries, and has therefore been a major agricultural country since ancient times. The revitalisation of rural industries is essentially based on the revitalisation of agriculture, and the modernisation of agriculture, as a necessary means to transform China's traditional agriculture into modern agriculture, can fundamentally improve the efficiency of agricultural operations and provide a constant internal driving force and sustained industrial competitiveness for the development and implementation of rural revitalisation [3].

The level of rural agricultural mechanisation reflects, to some extent, the degree of progress in modernising rural agriculture. Because the promotion of agricultural modernisation itself requires building rural development on basis of modern technology, through use of modern scientific information technology and modern scientific management concepts to improve rural production methods, enhance the rural environment and improve the
