Schools as Professional Learning Communities Sylvia M. Roberts, Eunice Z. Pruitt, 2003-06-26 Schools as Professional Learning Communities is an extraordinary achievement. It brings together what a long time practitioner can see and sense. It is an illumination of an exciting path to a constantly improving instructional community. S. David Adler, Superintendent retired Bergen County Schools, Newton, New Jersey. Much has been written about professional learning communities as part of the change and restructuring process, but Sylvia M. Roberts and Eunice Z. Pruitt manage to move the discussion from theory to practice. Their book features such practitioner friendly items as learning activities, more than 25 short cases and scenarios, tips for teachers and administrators, information about online resources, reproducible forms and worksheets. The authors cover professional development strategies that build community, such as classroom observation, mentoring, collaborative assessment of student work, professional portfolios, peer coaching, team teaching, and teacher leadership. For teachers and administrators focused on improved student achievement, school change, equity, and teacher leadership, this is a must have resource.

Living Headship Harry Tomlinson, Helen M. Gunter, Pauline Smith, 1999. The book has a wide appeal to existing heads, aspiring heads, lecturers, and writers about headship. The contributors to this book have lifted the curtain on the realities of headships, and in the process have added to our understanding of what school leadership is all about these days. Managing Schools Today. Practitioners and trainers understand how vitally important school leadership is to the practice of headship. Living Headship presents the experiences of successful heads working in primary and secondary schools. We hear in their accounts the authentic voices of heads determined to ensure that their leadership enhances the performance of their schools. Some have been in post for many years and

School-based food and nutrition education Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations, 2020-12-10. School based food and nutrition education (SFNE) helps schoolchildren and the school community to achieve lasting improvements in their food practices and outlooks, build the capacity to change and to adapt to external change, and pass on their learning to others. SFNE has also an important role in complementing efforts that are being made globally to improve food environments and in empowering children and adolescents to become active participants in shaping the food system to be better able to deliver healthy and sustainable diets. Despite increasing interest for SFNE, the evidence that supports it and its potential, much of traditional SFNE, particularly in LMICs, is largely underfunded, not delivering results, and disconnected from other key interventions that aim to support the food nutrition environment and education nexus. SFNE is under resourced, with capacity development opportunities lacking throughout the school system. This White Paper is the first document of its kind, and it is based on the evidence, professional expertise, and field experience, lessons learned, and documented challenges of
