Archaeological Chemistry A Mark Pollard, Carl Heron, 2015-11-09 The application of chemistry within archaeology is an important and fascinating area It allows the archaeologist to answer such questions as what is this artefact made of where did it come from and how has it been changed through burial in the ground providing pointers to the earliest history of mankind Archaeological Chemistry begins with a brief description of the goals and history of archaeological science and the place of chemistry within it It sets out the most widely used analytical techniques in archaeology and compares them in the light of relevant applications. The book includes an analysis of several specific archaeological investigations in which chemistry has been employed in tracing the origins of or in preserving artefacts. The choice of these investigations conforms to themes based on analytical techniques and includes chapters on obsidian ceramics glass metals and resins Finally it suggests a future role for chemical and biochemical applications in archaeology Archaeological Chemistry enables scientists to tackle the fundamental issues of chemical change in the archaeological materials in order to advance the study of the past It will prove an essential companion to students in archaeological science and chemistry field and museum archaeologists and all those involved in conserving human artefacts Historic Floors Jane Fawcett, 2007-06-01 This is the first book in the UK to be devoted to historic floors It introduces an important and largely neglected subject and considers conservation methods in a European context It traces the history of some of the great floors of Europe from the fourth century B C and outlines the development of mosaic tiles marble and parquetry floors in secular buildings The early Christian pavements in basilicas temples and cathedrals the creation of medieval tiles ledger stones and monumental brasses their destruction by iconoclasts and re creation during the Gothic Revival are also discussed Leading authorities archaeologists architects and archivists consider the latest methods of recording and repairing cathedral floors including those of cathedrals country houses the monumental tiled pavements of the Palace of Westminster and other public buildings Management policies to protect outstanding floors in over visited sites are considered and historic features particularly at risk are identified Urgent action is recommended to contain the damage caused by the dramatic increase in tourism throughout Europe London Quarterly Review, 1893
