Mad Masquerade Barbara Hazard, 1985-04 The Horror Film Stephen Prince, 2004-02-09 In this volume Stephen Prince has collected essays reviewing the history of the horror film and the psychological reasons for its persistent appeal as well as discussions of the developmental responses of young adult viewers and children to the genre The book focuses on recent postmodern examples such as The Blair Witch Project In a daring move the volume also examines Holocaust films in relation to horror Part One features essays on the silent and classical Hollywood eras Part Two covers the postWorld War II era and discusses the historical aesthetic and psychological characteristics of contemporary horror films In contrast to horror during the classical Hollywood period contemporary horror features more graphic and prolonged visualizations of disturbing and horrific imagery as well as other distinguishing characteristics Princes introduction provides an overview of the genre contextualizing the readings that follow Stephen Prince is professor of communications at Virginia Tech He has written many film books including Classical Film Violence Designing and Regulating Brutality in Hollywood Cinema 1930-1968 and has edited Screening Violence also in the Depth of Field Series Sessue Hayakawa Daisuke Miyao, 2007-03-28 Critical biography of Sessue Hayakawa a Japanese actor who became a popular silent film star in the U S that looks at how Hollywood treated issues of race and nationality in the early twentieth century By Order of the Company Mary Johnston, 1923 The Broadway, 1869 Hideous Progeny Angela Smith, 2012-01-24 Twisted bodies deformed faces aberrant behavior and abnormal desires characterized the hideous creatures of classic Hollywood horror which thrilled audiences with their sheer grotesqueness Most critics have interpreted these traits as symptoms of sexual repression or as metaphors for other kinds of marginalized identities yet Angela M Smith conducts a richer investigation into the period s social and cultural preoccupations She finds instead a fascination with eugenics and physical and cognitive debility in the narrative and spectacle of classic 1930s horror heightened by the viewer s desire for visions of vulnerability and transformation Reading such films as Dracula 1931 Frankenstein 1931 Dr Jekyll and Mr Hyde 1931 Freaks 1932 and Mad Love 1935 against early twentieth century disability discourse and propaganda on racial and biological purity Smith showcases classic horror s dependence on the narratives of eugenics and physiognomics She also notes the genre s conflicted and often contradictory visualizations Smith ultimately locates an indictment of biological determinism in filmmakers visceral treatments which take the impossibility of racial improvement and bodily perfection to sensationalistic heights Playing up the artifice and conventions of disabled monsters filmmakers exploited the fears and yearnings of their audience accentuating both the perversity of the medical and scientific gaze and the debilitating experience of watching horror Classic horror films therefore encourage empathy with the disabled monster offering captive viewers an unsettling encounter with their own impairment Smith s work profoundly advances cinema and disability studies in addition to general histories concerning the construction of social and political attitudes toward the Other The Cambridge Companion to discusses Mathis's artistic and moral failings as well as how her efforts such as overlooked collaborations with writer Katharine Kavanaugh and actress Alla Nazimova consistently challenged male dominance, militarism and greed. Despite her talent and achievements, Mathis was pushed to the margins when the industry began removing women from spheres of influence. Following a few months of freelancing, she suffered a heart attack during a Broadway show and died at the age of forty. Very quickly, this woman whose ideas shaped American film for more than a decade was forgotten. June Mathis portrays the cinematic legacy of this million-dollar girl whose complex story ended too soon but remains relevant today.

Transforming Faces for the Screen Karen Randell, Alexis Weedon, 2023-11-09. This book brings together research from medical and film archives to illustrate the cultural impact of film and literature in its relationship to the discourse of plastic surgery in the 1920s. This different take on reading the body after the First World War enables students of multiple disciplines and readers interested in both Hollywood and post-war culture to understand some of the complexities of medical interventions gained after the First World War and the way in which they filtered into the world of Hollywood film making. It also allows readers who may not be familiar with these two 1920s stars to access the films of Lon Chaney and the books and films of Elinor Glyn and gain new insights into 1920s visual culture. For ease of readership, the book is organised so that each of the main chapters focuses on a particular film either Lon Chaney or Elinor Glyn This is particularly useful for use in the classroom or for online education Readers can refer to the film directly aided by illustrations of frames from the films This book tells the story of how two stars of Hollywood film transformed their character s faces on screen through a close reading of three films in the 1920s It reveals how they applied their embodied knowledge of surgery and surgical procedures to broaden their audience s emotional and intellectual understanding of the treatment of deformity and disability The Dark Side of G.K.
