Madness Disability And Social Exclusion The Archaeology And Anthropology Of Difference:

Madness, Disability and Social Exclusion Jane Hubert, 2013-12-02 A unique work that brings together a number of specialist disciplines such as archaeology anthropology disability studies and psychiatry to create a new perspective on social and physical exclusion from society A range of evidence throws light on such things as the causes and consequences of social exclusion stigma marginality and dangerousness It is an important text that breaks down traditional academic disciplinary boundaries and brings a much needed comparative approach to the subject Invisible Insanity John Deadman, Sam Sussman, David Streiner, 2023-07-06 From the frontlines of the fight for dignity and appropriate treatment for those struggling with mental health challenges John Deadman Sam Sussman and David Streiner offer a social history of mental illness in Canada and the world that is rich in research personal experience scientific knowledge and challenging truths Reaching back to ancient times the authors trace the story of mental health treatment and connect past events to the eventual policy of deinstitutionalization in Canada As eyewitnesses to the painful fallout of deinstitutionalization the authors are well positioned to describe the results of this policy particularly for the severely mentally ill incarceration homelessness and helplessness The shocking visibility of these challenges has led to calls for action but major social institutions such as government and religious organizations have been unable to provide lasting solutions Invisible Insanity A Social History of Mental Illness in Canada and the World will appeal to mental health professionals those who suffer from mental illness family and friends of those who suffer and members of society as a whole It is an issue that touches all of us in some way and the authors will inspire readers to advocate for comprehensive care that meets the needs of patients and treats them with the dignity and professionalism they deserve The Odd, the Unusual, and the Strange Tracy K. Byrnes, Jennifer L. Muller, 2017-06-28 Over the years impairment has been discussed in bioarchaeology with some scholars providing carefully contextualized explanations for their causes and consequences Such investigations typically take a case study approach and focus on the functional aspects of impairments However these interpretations are disconnected from disability theory discourse Other social sciences and the humanities have far surpassed most of anthropology with the exception of medical anthropology in their integration of social theories of disability This volume has three goals The first goal of this edited volume is to present theoretical and methodological discussions on impairment and disability The second goal of this volume is to emphasize the necessity of interdisciplinarity in discussions of impairment and disability within bioarchaeology The third goal of the volume is to present various methodological approaches to quantifying impairment in skeletonized and mummified remains This volume serves to engage scholars from many disciplines in our exploration of disability in the past with particular emphasis on the bioarchaeological context Ortner's Identification of Pathological Conditions in Care in the Past Lindsay Powell,William Southwell-Wright,Rebecca Gowland,2016-11-30 Care giving is an activity that has been practiced by all human societies From the earliest societies through to the present all humans have faced choices regarding how people in positions of dependency are to be treated As such care giving and the form it takes is a central experience of being a human and one that is culturally mediated Archaeology has tended to marginalise the study of care and debates surrounding our ability to recognise it within the archaeological record have often remained implicit rather than a focus of discussion These 12 papers examine the topic of care in past societies and specifically how we might recognise the provision of care in archaeological contexts and to open up an inter disciplinary conversation including historical bioarchaeological faunal and philosophical perspectives The topic of care is examined through three different strands the provision of care throughout the life course namely that provided to the youngest and oldest members of a society care giving and attitudes towards impairment and disability in prehistoric and historic contexts and the role of animals as both recipients of care and as tools for its provision

Indigenous Archaeologies Claire Smith,H. Martin Wobst,2004-11-10 With case studies from North America to Australia and South Africa and covering topics from archaeological ethics to the repatriation of human remains this book charts the development of a new form of archaeology that is informed by indigenous values and agendas This involves fundamental changes in archaeological theory and practice as well as substantive changes in the power relations between archaeologists and indigenous peoples Questions concerning the development of ethical archaeological practices are at the heart of this process Palaeopathology and Evolutionary Medicine Kimberly A. Plomp,Charlotte A. Roberts,Sarah Elton,Gilian R. Bentley,2022 The volume aims to encourage more co produced research addressing questions about human health past and present by scholars working in evolutionary medicine EM and palaeopathology It highlights future research that may promote that collaboration between palaeopathology and EM This chapter starts with the premise that EM and palaeopathology have clear synergies in that they take a deep time perspective as they explore health in the past and in the present It introduces the volume and first provides a background to evolutionary medicine from its first appearance in the early 1990s including discussions about ultimate and proximate explanations for disease It then highlights that the field of palaeopathology was initially established much earlier than EM and it is argued that practitioners before the 1990s often physicians were simply not exposed to evolutionary theory in relation to the diseases they were seeing both in the living and in the dead However the stage now looks set for more productive collaborations A thematic overview of the volume and its individual chapters follows within the framework of the suggested categories for study within EM Williams and Nesse 1990 The chapter finishes with some discussion about the One Health initiative EM and palaeopathology an initiative that is considered an essential area of study now and into the future
