Scorched Earth Hendrik van der Koelb, The sun rose like a wound bleeding across the charred horizon its light filtering through the perpetual haze that had shrouded the earth for three years now Marcus Thorne pulled the makeshift respirator tighter around his face and adjusted the straps of his weathered backpack The weight of his meager supplies pressed into his shoulders a constant reminder of how little remained in this scorched world He stood at the edge of what had once been the thriving city of Portland though nothing remained now but twisted metal skeletons and mounds of ash that the wind scattered like gray snow The great fires had consumed everything organic leaving behind a landscape that resembled the surface of some alien planet more than the Pacific Northwest he had called home The silence was absolute broken only by the whisper of wind through the skeletal remains of buildings and the soft crunch of ash beneath his boots No birds sang no insects buzzed no voices called out in the distance The world had become a tomb and he was perhaps one of its last living inhabitants Marcus checked his water gauge for the third time that morning Half a liter remained enough for perhaps two days if he rationed carefully His food supplies were even more dire a handful of protein bars and some canned goods he had scavenged from a buried convenience store The radiation detector clipped to his belt clicked sporadically a mechanical heartbeat counting down to his own mortality Three years ago the world had ended not with the dramatic nuclear exchange that Cold War strategists had predicted but with something far more insidious The atmospheric processors massive machines designed to reverse climate change by scrubbing carbon from the air had malfunctioned simultaneously across the globe Instead of cleansing the atmosphere they had released a cocktail of experimental chemicals that ignited the oxygen itself turning the entire planet into a furnace

Scorched Earth Paul Thomas Chamberlin,2025-05-06 A powerful unsparing new history of World War II recasting the conflict as a brutal struggle for survival among declining and ascendant imperial powers In popular memory the Second World War was an unalloyed victory for freedom over totalitarianism marking the demise of the age of empires and the triumph of an American led democratic order In Scorched Earth historian Paul Thomas Chamberlin dispatches the myth of World War II as a good war Instead he depicts the conflict as it truly was a massive battle beset by vicious racial atrocities fought between rival empires across huge stretches of Asia and Europe The war was sparked by German and Japanese invasions that threatened the old powers dominance not by Allied opposition to fascism The Allies achieved victory not through pluck and democratic idealism but through savage firebombing raids on civilian targets and the slaughter of millions of Soviet soldiers The Soviet Union and the United States emerged as hyper militarized new imperial powers each laying claim to former Axis holdings across the globe before turning on one another and triggering a new forever war Dramatically rendered and persuasively argued Scorched Earth shows that World War II marked the culmination of centuries of colonial violence and ushered in a new era of imperial struggle
