Madison Jones Garden Of Innocence:

Madison Jones' Garden of Innocence Jan Nordby Gretlund, 2005 Madison Jones is a central figure in American literature but paradoxically not well known. He writes about conflicts between the native and the alien tradition and progress and innocence and experience. He is the author of eleven novels including The Innocent, An Exile, I Walk the Line, A Cry of Absence, Season of the Strangle, and Nashville 1864. His novel The Dying of the Light appeared in 2003. He is the winner of the T. S. Eliot Award for Creative Writing. Like his fellow novelists George Garrett and David Madden, who have contributed to this volume, Jones shares the regret at the loss of inherited values. He has been praised by the critics Ashley Brown, Monroe Spears, and Lewis P. Simpson as an important transitional writer. And according to contemporary writers Madison Smartt Bell, William Hoffman, and Lee Smith, his novels are lessons in the possibility of the immediate. As the essays in this collection show, Madison Jones has a dark view of human experience but also self-knowledge and compassion. He has succeeded in finding his own voice and has created an emphatically moral world that transcends its Southern particulars.

Southern Writers Bear Witness Jan Nordby Gretlund, 2018-07-15 Fourteen Southern storytellers reveal their influences, methods, and daily routines and struggles with the writing process. Jan Nordby Gretlund has been studying the literature of the American South for some fifty years, and his outsider's perspective as a European scholar has made him an intellectually acute witness of both the literature and its creators. Whether it is their language and reflexive storytelling or the craft and techniques by which writers transform life and experience into art that fascinates Gretlund, elements of their fiction led to his interviews with the fourteen storytellers featured in Southern Writers Bear Witness. Gretlund believes a good interview will always reveal something about a writer's life and character details that can inform a reading of that writer's fiction. The interviewer's task, according to Gretlund, is to supply the reader with some of the sources and experiences that inspired and shaped the fiction. Through his conversations, Gretlund also occasionally elicits the subjects' reflections on other writers and their work to discover affiliations, lines of influence, and divergences, and he also emphasizes the enduring power of their work. His interviews with Eudora Welty and Pam Durban uncover strong family and community experiences found at the core of their fiction. Gretlund also turns conversations to the craft of writing: writers' daily routines and specific problems encountered in their work, such as Clyde Edgerton's struggle with point of view. In other exchanges, he investigates distinctive elements of a writer's work, such as violence in Barry Hannah's fiction and religious faith in Walker Percy's. Still other conversations, such as his with Josephine Humphreys, touch on the pressures and opportunities of publishing and its influence on the writer's work. Taken together, these authors' insights on life in the South provide a fascinating window into the creative process of storytelling, as well as the human experiences that fuel it. A foreword by Daniel Cross Turner, author of Southern Crossings, Poetry Memory, and the Transcultural South, and co-editor of Undead Souths, The Gothic and Beyond in Southern Literature and Culture, and Hard Lines, Rough South Poetry, is also included. Flannery O'Connor Review, 2008 Still in Print Jan Nordby Gretlund, 2013-01-23 An insightful guidebook to some of the best examples of modern Southern fiction as selected by an international group of critics In Still in Print eighteen southern novels published since 1997 fall under the careful scrutiny of an international cast of accomplished literary critics to identify the very best of recent writings in the genre These essays highlight the praiseworthy efforts of a pantheon of novelists celebrating and challenging regionality unearthing manifestations of the past in the present and looking to the future with wit and healthy skepticism Organized around shared themes of history place humor and malaise the novels discussed here interrogate southern culture and explore the region's promise for the future Four novels reconsider the Civil War and its aftermath as Charles Frazier Kaye Gibbons Josephine

Humphreys and Pam Durban revisit the past and add fresh insights to contemporary discussions of race and gender through their excursions into history. The novels by Steve Yarbrough, Larry Brown, Chris Offutt, Barry Hannah, and James Lee Burke demonstrate a keen sense of place rooted in a South marked by fundamentalism, poverty, violence, and rampant prejudice but still capable of promise for some unseen future. The comic fiction of George Singleton, Clyde Edgerton, James Wilcox, Donald Harington, and Lewis Nordan shows how southern humor still encompasses customs and speech reflected in concrete places. Ron Rash, Richard Ford, and Cormac McCarthy probe the depths of human existence, often with disturbing results, as they write about protagonists cut off from their own humanity and desperate to reconnect with the human race. Diverse in content but unified in genre, these particular novels have been nominated by the contributors to Still in Print for long-term survival as among the best modern representations of the southern novel. Featuring M. Thomas Inge on Charles Frazier's Cold Mountain, Clara Juncker on Josephine Humphreys's Nowhere Else on Earth, Kathryn McKee on Kaye Gibbons's On the Occasion of My Last Afternoon, Jan Nordby Gretlund on Pam Durban's So Far Back, Tara Powell on Percival Everett's Erasure, Tom Dasher on Steve Yarbrough's The Oxygen Man, Jean Cash on Larry Brown's Fay, Carl Wieck on Chris Offutt's The Good Brother, Owen W. Gilman Jr. on Barry Hannah's Yonder Stands Your Orphan, Hans H. Skei on James Lee Burke's Crusader's Cross, Charles Israel on George Singleton's Work Shirts for Madmen, John Grammer on Clyde Edgerton's The Bible Salesman, Scott Romine on James Wilcox's Heavenly Days, Edwin T. Arnold on Donald Harington's Enduring, Marcel Arbeit on Lewis Nordan's Lightning Song, Thomas r. vold Bjerre on Ron Rash's One Foot in Eden, Robert H. Brinkmeyer Jr. on Richard Ford's The Lay of the Land, Richard Gray on Cormac McCarthy's The Road. Appalachian Journal, 2006. A regional studies review. The Innocent Madison Jones, 1993. A Southerner's attempt to restore an antique way of life ends in murder. Touching the Web of Southern Novelists David Madden, 2006. David Madden is one of the South's most notable contemporary writers. His interests are remarkably vast. He has published award-winning fiction, poetry, plays, critical works, and essays on a wide variety of subjects ranging from history to popular culture. This collection represents Madden's essays on various other southern writers and his own struggle to come to terms with how the works and lives of these writers have influenced his own life and work. By analyzing the charged image of the spider web as described in chapter four of Robert Penn Warren's All the King's Men, Madden shows that it is a central symbol for his involvement with the interconnected, complex tradition of contemporary southern literature. Touching the Web of Southern Novelists brings together essays on Faulkner, Warren, McCullers, Wolfe, Agee, and a new essay on Evelyn Scott. More than a collection of criticism, the book explores in overlapping, far-reaching ways how influence works its way through the southern literary tradition. It also includes an unusually detailed index. Two of the common elements in the essays are the dynamics and consequences of the relationship of an ostensible hero to his or her witnesses and the art of fiction, especially in the technique of using a charged image, a term that Madden invented. Another element is the overwhelming, if sometimes hidden, effect of the Civil War upon southern fiction. Madden provocatively argues that no northerner can write a true Civil War novel All Southern fiction comes out of the Civil War he argues and that Absalom Absalom is the best Civil War novel because of its complex implications not because it is overtly about the war Perhaps most powerful because of its semi autobiographical nature Touching the Web of Southern Novelists will appeal to anyone with an interest in literary studies and how art and life in southern novels are entwined with each other caught in a web Choice ,2005 American Literary Scholarship James Leslie Woodress,2005 Book Review Index ,2006 Every 3rd issue is a quarterly cumulation Literature of Tennessee Ray Willbanks,1984 Magasinet humaniora ,2003 Separate Country Paul Binding,1988 The Times Literary Supplement Index ,1940 Writing the Environment in Nineteenth-Century American Literature Steven Petersheim,Madison Jones IV,2015-09-17 The nineteenth century roots of environmental writing in American literature are often mentioned in passing and sometimes studied piece by piece Writing the Environment in Nineteenth Century American Literature The Ecological Awareness of Early Scribes of Nature brings together numerous explorations of environmentally aware writing across the genres of nineteenth century literature Like Lawrence Buell the authors of this collection find Thoreau s writing a touchstone of nineteenth century environmental writing particularly focusing on Thoreau s claim that humans may function as scribes of nature However these studies of Thoreau s antecedents contemporaries and successors also reveal a range of other writers in the nineteenth century whose literary treatments of nature are often more environmentally attuned than most readers have noticed The writers whose works are studied in this collection include canonical and forgotten writers men and women early nineteenth century and late nineteenth century authors pioneers and conservationists They drew attention to the conflicted relationships between humans and the American continent as experienced by Native Americans and European Americans Taken together these essays offer a fresh perspective on the roots of environmental literature in nineteenth century American nonfiction fiction and poetry as well as in multi genre compositions such as the travel writings of Margaret Fuller Bringing largely forgotten voices such as John Godman alongside canonical voices such as Nathaniel Hawthorne Herman Melville Walt Whitman and Emily Dickinson the authors whose writings are studied in this collection produced a diverse tapestry of nascent American environmental writing in the nineteenth century From early nineteenth century writers such as poet Philip Freneau and novelist Charles Brockden Brown to later nineteenth century conservationists such as John James Audubon and John Muir Scribes of Nature shows the development of an environmental consciousness and a growing conservationist ethos in American literature Given their often surprisingly healthy respect for the natural environment these nineteenth century writers offer us much to consider in an age of environmental crisis The complexities of the supposed nature culture divide still work into our lives today as economic and environmental issues are often seen at loggerheads when they ought to be seen as part of the same conversation of what it means to live healthy lives and to pass on a healthy world to those who follow us in a world where human activity is becoming increasingly threatening to the health of our planet
