Henry James: Novels 1886-1890 (LOA #43) Henry James, 1989-06-01 The three novels in this Library of America volume from Henry James's middle period explore some historical and social dilemmas that belong as much to our time as to his own The Princess Casamassima was published in 1886 a year that saw riots of the unemployed in London It is a political novel in which anarchists and terrorists conspire within a fin de siècle world of opulence and glamour The action ranges from palaces to slums from London to Paris to Venice and back again The novel's hero Hyacinth Robinson is torn between his loyalty to revolutionary causes for which he is about to commit an act of violence that may cost him his life and his taste for the artistic side of aristocratic culture represented in part by the beautiful wealthy compassionate and yet deceptive Princess of the title Possibly to save Hyacinth she becomes romantically involved with his fellow conspirator Paul Muniment a calculating political operative idealistic and treacherous by turns Assassination plots sexual betrayals murder suicide and the fierce play of conflicting loyalties all these bring into play an intricate abundance of attendant figures like the rakish Captain Sholto and the appealing but faithless Millicent Henning The Reverberator 1888 is a swiftly paced comic novel named after a newspaper that caters to the American public's appetite for the society news of every quarter of the globe Francie Dosson the free spirited daughter of a wealthy Boston family innocently provides gossip to George Flack a young commercial American who writes for the paper His published report imperils her engagement to Gaston Probert whose family is outraged by the airing of its secrets James portrays the collision of easily shocked Old World propriety and self-assured New World naiveté with benevolent affection and spirited delight The Tragic Muse 1890 explores with a topical realism not usually found in James the conflicts between art and politics society and the Bohemian life It does so with dazzling glimpses of Parisian theater and of London aestheticism as articulated by the flamboyant and idealistic Gabriel Nash At its center are four superbly drawn characters The fascinating Miriam Rooth is an actress of overwhelming egotistic vitality and dedication to her art Her suitor the diplomat Peter

Sherringham is impassioned by her theatrical talent even while asking her to sacrifice it for his career Nick Dormer faces a similar predicament in his engagement to the rich Julia Dallow who wants him to forgo his painting so as to make use of her fortune in pursuit of his career in Parliament Full of witty talk and vividly dramatic scenes the novel includes a vast array of characters such as the impressive political matriarch Lady Dormer Perhaps more than any of his novels it attests to James's recognition of the costs of any dedication like his own to creative achievement

Henry James Henry James, 2001 This collection of Henry James's letters more than half of which have never been published offers a vivid picture of his life of passionate creation and the complex world in which he lived Through his exchanges with writers such as William Dean Howells Henry Adams Robert Louis Stevenson H G Wells and Edith Wharton as well as presidents prime ministers bishops painters and great ladies and actresses we gain a fascinating glimpse of James's views on sex politics and friendship as well as his novels and the art of writing These letters constitute a landmark of James scholarship and the real and best biography of this most complex and compelling artist

The American Henry James, 2016-01-06 Chapter I On a brilliant day in May in the year 1868 a gentleman was reclining at his ease on the great circular divan which at that period occupied the centre of the Salon Carré in the Museum of the Louvre This commodious ottoman has since been removed to the extreme regret of all weak kneed lovers of the fine arts but the gentleman in question had taken serene possession of its softest spot and with his head thrown back and his legs outstretched was staring at Murillo's beautiful moon borne Madonna in profound enjoyment of his posture He had removed his hat and flung down beside him a little red guide book and an opera glass The day was warm he was heated with walking and he repeatedly passed his handkerchief over his forehead with a somewhat wearied gesture And yet he was evidently not a man to whom fatigue was familiar long lean and muscular he suggested the sort of vigor that is commonly known as toughness But his exertions on this particular day had been of an unwonted sort and he had performed great physical feats which left him less jaded than his tranquil stroll through the Louvre He had looked out all the pictures to which an asterisk was affixed in those formidable pages of fine print in his B deker his attention had been strained and his eyes dazzled and he had sat down with an sthetic headache He had looked moreover not only at all the pictures but at all the copies that were going forward around them in the hands of those innumerable young women in irreproachable toilets who devote themselves in France to the propagation of masterpieces and if the truth must be told he had often admired the copy much more than the original His physiognomy would have sufficiently indicated that he was a shrewd and capable fellow and in truth he had often sat up all night over a bristling bundle of accounts and heard the cock crow without a yawn But Raphael and Titian and Rubens were a new kind of arithmetic and they inspired our friend for the first time in his life with a vague self mistrust

CHAPTER I What determined the speech that startled him in the course of their encounter scarcely matters being probably but some words spoken by himself quite without intention spoken as they lingered and slowly moved together after their renewal of acquaintance He had been conveyed by friends an hour or two before to the house at which she was staying the party of visitors at the other house of whom he was one and thanks to whom it was his theory as always that he was lost in the crowd had been invited over to luncheon There had been after luncheon much dispersal all in the interest of the original motive a view of Weatherend itself and the fine things intrinsic features pictures heirlooms treasures of all the arts that made the place almost famous and the great rooms were so numerous that guests could wander at their will hang back from the principal group and in cases where they took such matters with the last seriousness give themselves up to mysterious appreciations and measurements There were persons to be observed singly or in couples bending toward objects in out of the way corners with their hands on their knees and their heads nodding quite as with the emphasis of an excited sense of smell When they were two they either mingled their sounds of ecstasy or melted into silences of even deeper import so that there were aspects of the occasion that gave it for Marcher much the air of the look round previous to a sale highly advertised that excites or quenches as may be the dream of acquisition
