

The Political Economy of Reforming Agricultural Support Policies

Rob Vos, Will Martin, and Danielle Resnick

3.1 Introduction

In both developed and developing countries, agricultural support policies provide enormous transfers of resources to agriculture—about US$817 billion per year worldwide in the 2019–2021 period (OECD 2022).¹ Some agricultural support policies, such as input subsidies, have boosted global food production, particularly of staple crops, thereby reducing hunger and poverty. Yet, there are serious concerns about their impacts on achieving sustainable, healthy, and inclusive food systems. Redirecting or “repurposing” agricultural subsidies toward investments that support both increased production and greater sustainability—such as agricultural research and development (R&D) and rural infrastructure—has the potential for win-win-win gains for people, planet, and prosperity.

This chapter first considers how shifts in agricultural support would affect global efforts to promote healthy, inclusive, and sustainable food system transformation. Since such reforms are contingent on political economy considerations, the chapter subsequently presents a framework for analyzing how interests, institutions, ideas and information, and policy characteristics intersect to facilitate or stymie reform efforts. Case studies of attempted reforms from different regions are presented that highlight the relevance of the framework. The chapter concludes by summarizing some potentially enabling political economy conditions for repurposing agricultural support policies.

Reforming World Agricultural Trade A Policy Statement By Twenty Nine Professionals From Seventeen Countries:

World Agricultural Trade Institute for Research on Public Policy, Institute for International Economics (U.S.), 1988 In 1987 the two Institutes brought together a number of persons with considerable experience in agricultural policy from 20 countries representing both importers and exporters They participated in 4 meetings and approved the consensus policy statement published here with the background papers developed for the meetings These background studies include suggestions for reforming government policies worldwide a North American and European Community approach to decoupling the policy decisions that affect production from those that are pursued on social or environmental grounds agriculture in GATT negotiations and developing countries and exchange rates and their role in agricultural trade issues

Of Agricultural Trade And Policy Hans J Michelmann, Jack C Stabler, Gary Storey, 2019-07-11 This book presents a descriptive analysis of the political economy of the European Community the U S and Canada It describes the structural changes and the crises in agriculture and focuses on impact of GATT on agricultural policy and trade in the post Second World War era Agricultural Trade Grace Skogstad, Andrew Fenton Cooper, 1990 Following an analysis of international negotiations this document examines the domestic political context which shapes the formulations of agricultural policy The contributors to this volume analyze the roots of agricultural policies and probe the sources of domestic conflicts and international tensions Technical Barriers To Agricultural Trade Jimmie Hillman, 2019-06-21 Professor Hillman s

Technical Barriers to Agricultural Trade is both timely and important It is timely because the GATT negotiations are proceeding slowly in the agricultural arena partly due to a lack of agreement on technical barriers to agricultural trade The book is important since it highlights many of the nontariff barriers which exist and concludes that they are significant impediments to international agricultural trade Governing Global Trade Theodore H. Cohn, 2017-05-15 Cohn s topic of global trade is of enormous and proliferating interest He provides a good background from 1945 to the present and on core contemporary themes such as civil society participation and the domesticisation of the trade agenda Whilst there is a wealth of literature on policy oriented aspects such as negotiating rounds there are few that provide the careful comprehensive historical overview that this work offers and none that do so with reference to international institutions such as the G7 Quad OECD and UNCTAD as well as the WTO in global trade governance This seminal work has been awarded the British Columbia Political Science Association Weller Prize for 2003 Cohn s political science background will appeal directly to a university audience and a broader public policy market It is also suitable for those interested in trade in the cognates of economics and law This work s theoretical framework embraces and synthesises the major approaches in the field of international relations and will be appropriate for the dominant schools of realists and liberal institutionalists alike It could therefore be apt for courses on international relations theory or international political economy taught in a theoretical mode This book reinforces and broadens the focus of all previous works in The G8 and Global Governance series Agriculture in the GATT Joachim Zietz, Alberto Valdés, 1988 Agriculture in the GATT an overview Criteria for evaluating trade reform proposals The theoretical consequences of changing certain GATT provisions Outline of a trade reform package

Improving Trade Policy Reviews in the World Trade Organization Donald B. Keating, 1998 The Trade Policy Review Mechanism is part of the World Trade Organization Its purpose is to strengthen observance of WTO commitments and promote trade liberalization by providing all member countries with objective information about the trade policies and practices of each member individually and by establishing a forum within which members can question one another's policies and practices in a nonconfrontational manner Since the TPRM was established in 1989 as one of the first fruits of the Uruguay Round of multilateral trade negotiations some 80 trade policy reviews have been completed covering nearly 60 countries In light of eight years of experience with the process it is fair to ask whether the TPRM is meeting the goals set for it at its inception Are the reviews sufficiently probing and analytical to provide information of real value Do they cover all relevant aspects of members trade Are they unbiased and objective Does the WTO devote sufficient resources to the task of conducting the reviews and to disseminating the information that they generate Is the potential value of this information to those outside the trade negotiations process being realized This text seeks to answer these questions and others

Enforcing World Trade Rules William J. Davey, 2006 Trade Negotiations In The OECD David J. Blair, 2013-07-04 First published in 1993 This book is situated at the intersection of three main areas of international relations research The first of these areas is the study of international organisations The second area of inquiry is international relations theory the decisions reached within international organisations are generally the result of some form of bargaining among their members an examination of the negotiations that go on among member countries is necessary in order to understand the functioning of these organisations The choice of the OECD as a subject of investigation stemmed from an interest in a third area of study international political economy in particular the relations among countries in the field of international trade

Global Competition Policy Edward Montgomery Graham, J. David Richardson, 1997 There is growing consensus among international trade negotiators and policymakers that a prime area for future multilateral discussion is competition policy Competition policy includes antitrust policy including merger regulation and control but is often extended to include international trade measures and other policies that affect the structure conduct and performance of individual industries This study includes country studies of competition policy in Western Europe North America and the Far East with a focus on Japan in the light of increasingly globalized activities of business firms Areas where there are major differences in philosophy policy or practice are identified with emphasis on those differences that could lead to economic costs and international friction Alternatives for eliminating these costs and frictions are discussed including unilateral policy changes bilateral or multilateral harmonization of policies and creation of new international regimes to supplement or replace national or regional regimes

The Political Economy of Policy Reform John Williamson,1994 Policymakers around the world have increasingly agreed that macroeconomic discipline microeconomic liberalization and outward orientation are prerequisites for economic success But what are the political conditions that make economic transformation possible At a conference held at the Institute for International Economics leaders of economic reform recounted their efforts to bring about change and discussed the impact of the political climate on the success of their efforts In this book these leaders explore the political conditions conducive to the success of policy reforms Did economic crisis strengthen the hands of the reformers Was the rapidity with which reforms were instituted crucial Did the reformers have a honeymoon period in which to transform the economy The authors answer these and other questions as well as providing first hand accounts of the politically charged atmosphere surrounding reform efforts in their countries

The Politics of Agriculture in Japan Aurelia George Mulgan,2013-01-11 Agriculture is one of the most politically powerful sectors in Japanese national politics This book provides the first comprehensive account of the political power of Japanese farmers This definitive text analyses the organisational and electoral basis of farmers political power including the role of agricultural interest groups the mobilisation of the farm vote and links between farmers and politicians in the Diet Agrarian power has helped to produce the distinctly pro rural anti urban bias of postwar Japanese governments resulting in a general neglect of urban consumer interests and sustained opposition to market opening for farm products This book represents a major study of Japanese agricultural organisations in their multifarious roles as interest groups agents of agricultural administration electoral resource providers and mammoth business groups It describes the policy issues that engage farmers concerns and identifies the agricultural commodities that carry the greatest political significance

Trade Policy and Global Poverty William R. Cline,2004 Free trade can help 500 million people escape poverty and inject

Curbing the Boom-Bust Cycle: Stabilizing Capital Flows to Emerging Markets Williamson, John,2005

Delivering on Debt Relief Nancy Birdsall,John Williamson,Brian Deese,2002 This study brings readers up to date on the complicated subject of debt relief for poor countries It also addresses the questions of more efficient and equitable government spending building better institutions and attracting productive private investment

Multilateral Negotiations Fen Osler Hampson,Michael Hart,1999-04-05 Political scientist Fen Osler Hampson with the assistance of trade specialist Michael Hart studies the component parts of the multilateral negotiation process to identify those factors making for success or failure The authors argue that multilateral negotiation is in essence a coalition building enterprise involving states nonstate actors and international organizations Among the questions they raise are How do issues get to the table in multilateral negotiations Who sits at the table and who composes the tiers of relevant stakeholders What are the procedures for managing complexity What are the obstacles strategic and psychological to reaching agreement

Ranging from the 1963 Test Ban Treaty to the Climate Change Convention 1992 and the completion of the Uruguay Round of GATT 1993 individual case studies include discussions on security environmental and economic issues Of particular interest is the attention given to nongovernmental actors such as scientists and environmental groups like Greenpeace International in prenegotiation and negotiation phases African Economic Reform Carol Lancaster,1991 This study proposes a new initiative involving the cancellation of concessional rescheduling of public bilateral debt of reforming African countries through a new international mechanism that would replace existing ones such as the Paris Club and the World Bank Consultative Groups Each of a series of Adjustment Review Consortia would bring together representatives of donor and creditor governments international aid and development agencies and an African government to coordinate debt relief aid and reform initiatives Properly implements ARCs would contribute to building a system in which economic need and performance not political favoritism play the principal roles in how debt and external financing in general are managed
