Tumours in Children H. B. Marsden, J. K. Steward, 2012-12-06 Cancer in childhood is a rare disease but for many reasons attracts interest out of proportion to its frequency There is of course the parental anguish associated with a catastrophic illness in a son or daughter anguish shared in large measure by the physician This aspect no doubt has spurred on clinicians and investigators in their race to develop more effective means of treatment The rewards are great Not only is there the human element but there is also the fact that survival of the successfully treated child is measured in scores of years rather than the ordinary five to ten year survival rates cited for the adult Associated with this aspect of paediatric oncology is the responsibility to make those many years as trouble free as possible The challenge to the team organizing the care of children with cancer is clear Cure is to be obtained but not at the cost of progressively more severe somatic or psychic lesions as the child develops through adolescence to maturity The cured child of today must not become the chronically ill adult of tomorrow The spectrum of malignant diseases in childhood is not so varied as that of older patients The kinds of tumour seen in children are relatively few in number therefore concentrated attention can be focussed on each entity and specific strategies developed for clinical management

Paediatric Pathology Colin L. Berry, 2012-12-06 The increased provision of facilities for neonatal and paediatric care in the last 25 years has been accompanied only in part by appropriate developments in pathology Specialist pathologists are many fewer than paediatric departments and details of the advances in knowledge of the pathogenesis of diseases in childhood and of ways of investigating them are not uniformly available In many institutions an individual with a special interest rather than a special training will be responsible for paediatric pathology and it is to this group of histopathologists that this text is addressed For this reason it is not written as a comprehensive text and is not intended for use as a reference volume Areas which may produce particular difficulties for the individual with little specialist knowledge of the very young e g the lung are dealt with in more detail and in general entities in which the histopathology does not differ greatly from that of the adult disease are considered briefly A brief account of developmental processes is included where prenatal considerations are helpful in understanding a particular entity A number of specialist topics which are known to trouble those who work in nonspecialist departments are described fully diseases of muscle or with guides to investigation metabolic disease The value of investigation and careful description of abnormalities of development is also emphasized The authors are from different backgrounds paediatric pathologists J W Keeling J Hatch & Sumner's Textbook of Paediatric Anaesthesia Third edition Robert Bingham, Adrian Lloyd Thomas, M Sury, 2008-06-27 Hatch and Sumner's Paediatric Anaesthesia is a thorough revision and update of the extremely popular Paediatric Anaesthesia by Edward Sumner and David Hatch A new editorial team has carefully revised the text and developed it into a concise textbook that provides all the information that a trainee or practising paediatric anaesthetist should know Current Catalog National Library of Medicine (U.S.), 1979 Includes subject section name section and 1968 1970 technical reports
