Questions and Questioning Michel Meyer, 2011-10-13 No detailed description available for Questions and Questioning

The Intimate Way of Zen James Ishmael Ford, 2024-07-23 An intimate mystery encompasses you and tugs upon your heart what does it mean to follow that tug across the arc of a spiritual life Reflecting out of more than fifty years of practice in Zen Buddhism Unitarian Universalism and other contemplative traditions James Ishmael Ford invites us into a journey through life's mysteries and the stages of spiritual development Lightly structured by the archetypal Buddhist oxherding images Ford's exploration is rooted in the Zen way while being deeply enriched by various strains of world mysticism The book sprinkled with insights and quotes from Buddhist Daoist and Christian traditions serves as a map and a companion to spiritual seekers or pilgrims whether within one religious tradition or cobbling together a way of one's own Here is the most natural of all natural experiences writes Ford In the midst of our suffering our longing our desperation we capture a glimpse Something touches us And with that if we are lucky and really notice some movement of some spirit within us we turn our attention to the intimate way

International Handbook of Survey Methodology Edith D. de Leeuw, Joop Hox, Don Dillman, 2012-10-12 Taking into account both traditional and emerging modes this comprehensive new Handbook covers all major methodological and statistical issues in designing and analyzing surveys With contributions from the world's leading survey methodologists and statisticians this invaluable new resource provides guidance on collecting survey data and creating meaningful results Featuring examples from a variety of countries the book reviews such things as how to deal with sample designs write survey questions and collect data on the Internet A thorough review of the procedures associated with multiple modes of collecting sample survey information and applying that combination of methods that fit the situation best is included The International Handbook of Survey Methodology opens with the foundations of survey design ranging from sources of error to ethical issues This is followed by a section on design that reviews sampling challenges and tips on writing and testing questions for multiple methods Part three focuses on data collection from face to face interviews to Internet and interactive voice response to special challenges involved in mixing these modes within one survey Analyzing data from both simple and complex surveys is then explored as well as procedures for adjusting data The book concludes with a discussion of maintaining quality Intended for advanced students and researchers in the behavioral social and health sciences this must have resource will appeal to those interested in conducting or using survey data from anywhere in the world especially those interested in comparing results across countries The book also serves as a state of the art text for graduate level courses and seminars on survey methodology A companion website contains additional readings and examples

A Practical Introduction to Real-World Research Loreen Wolfer, 2021-01-15 This practical text combines social research methods with coverage of statistical analysis to help students develop the applied research skills needed for future careers in public and private organizations while also delivering a solid foundation for those going on to graduate school Throughout the book the author offers a real world example and then breaks it down into a decision tree which helps lead students to a possible statistical decision rather than starting with the statistic This text gives students a toolbox of the most common and in demand skills and demonstrates how those skills can be used to make the best research decisions The book takes students through the entire real world research process from the formation of a research topic to measurement and sampling to methods for gathering information and making sense of the data and finally presenting to a non academic audience in a way that gets the job done Resources for instructors and students are available on an accompanying website for the book 40

Wolcher, 2016-06-17 The founding premise of this book is that the nimbus of prestige which once surrounded the idea of justice has now been dimmed to such a degree that it is no longer sufficient to secure the possibility of a good conscience for those who undertake in good faith to make the world a better place in the spheres of politics and law The many decent human beings who have noticed and experienced this diminishment of justice s prestige find themselves in a thoroughly disenchanted existential situation For them the attempt to do justice without the illusion of being grounded in something beyond the sheer facticity of their own performances is a distinctly ethical theme which cries out to be investigated in its own right. Heeding the cry this book asks and attempts to answer the following fundamental ethical question: is a life in the law even one spent in the pursuit of justice worth living and if so how can a disenchanted person come to bear the living of it without constantly having to engage in self-deception? If Nietzsche is right that living without illusions is impossible for human beings then the most important ethical implication of this essentially anthropological fact goes far beyond the question of what illusions we ought to choose. It must also include the question of whether we should succumb to that most seductive and pernicious of all illusions namely the belief that exercising great care and responsibility in choosing our illusions which we might then call our principles of justice excuses us ethically for what we do to others in their name. The culmination of a 10 year legal philosophical project this book will appeal to graduate students scholars and curious non-academic intellectuals interested in continental philosophy critical legal theory postmodern theology the philosophy of human rights and the study of individual ethics in the context of law.
