Thinking the Faith Douglas John Hall, 1991-01-01 As the Christian movement nears the end of its second millennium it faces a crisis that could not have been anticipated at the close of the first thousand years or indeed by most of our own great grandparents Since the most conspicuous dimensions of the waning of Christendom have to do with material decline the decline in church membership and active attendance of Sunday services the decline in financial and physical prosperity the decline of influence in high places such analyses as there are usually belabor the obvious something drastic is happening to the churches Throughout most of its long history Christianity has not required of its adherents that they should think the faith The historical accident of its political and cultural establishment 15 centuries ago ensured that a thinking faith would be purely optional for members of the church But thought less faith which has always been a contradiction in terms is today a stage on the road to the extinction not only of Christianity itself but of whatever the architects of our civilization meant by Humanity Only a thinking faith can survive Only a thinking faith can help the world survive From the Preface
