Question Of Being

Virginia. General Assembly. House of

Question Of Being:

The Question of Being Martin Heidegger, 1968 The Question of Being David Haines, 2017 The difficulty of approaching the question of Being is described by Stienne Gilson as follows in a domain where dialectical demonstration loses its rights one can do no more than look say what he sees and invite others to turn like himself their eyes towards the truth In fact says Gilson earlier in this same article Take two metaphysicians who are equally competent and in possession of equal ability in the handling of dialectical arguments it is possible that neither of them will ever succeed in convincing the other because they do not see the same things This seems to be the fate of the true philosopher as he is described in the Sophist who is hard to see because that area is so bright and the eyes of most people's souls cannot bear to look at that which is divine If the philosopher the person who questions Being is difficult to see because of that which he is pursuing then that which he is pursuing must be even more difficult to grasp As Josef Pieper puts it The philosophizing person finds himself in just such a situation this is precisely what singles him out that is that he is obliged to speak of something undeniably encountered but that cannot be expressed exactly in words This dissertation can be divided into two major sections The first major section could be portrayed as an interpretative section We here attempt to establish as accurately as possible the differing attempts to answer the question of Being that were proposed by Plato Aristotle and Martin Heidegger We are in a sense attempting to map out the paths they took in their quest to attain the summit of Mount Being Each of these sections contain our own contributions to what we propose is the proper interpretation of these three philosophers These contributions take into account a preliminary interpretation of these authors followed by the attempt to wade through a veritable swamp of interpretative writings that purport to tell us once and for all how to properly understand the ontological claims of Plato Aristotle and Martin Heidegger Our contributions to philosophical thought surrounding these particular thinkers do not constitute however the primary goal of this dissertation Rather they will serve to help us in our attempt to climb the mountain of Being Having mapped out their paths we should be better able to plan out our own approach to the question of Being Thus in the second section we will use what we have learned in the first section in order to approach the question of Being anew This second section should be seen as a philosophical section the active pursuit of wisdom In this second section we propose to approach the question of Being first of all through a comparison analysis and critique of the three thinkers we examined in the first section This will be followed by our own humble attempts to answer the question of Being We will conclude with some brief thoughts about how our discoveries about Being may affect other domains of knowledge
