Chaos, Catastrophe, and Human Affairs Stephen J. Guastello, 2013-05-13 Whether talking about steering a wheelbarrow over rugged terrain or plotting the course of international relations human performance systems involve change Sometimes changes are subtle or evolutionary sometimes they are catastrophic or revolutionary and sometimes the changes are from periods of relative calm to periods of vibrant oscillations to periods of chaos As a general rule more complex systems are likely to produce more complex forms of change Although social scientists have long acknowledged that change occurs and have considered ways to effect desirable change the dynamical processes of change have been poorly understood in the past This volume combines recent advances in mathematics and experimental design with the best available social science theories to produce a new integrated and compact theory of work organizations and social evolution The domains of application extend from human decision making processes to personnel selection and work motivation work performance under conditions of stress accident and health risk analysis the development of social institutions and economic systems creativity and innovation organizational development and group dynamics and political revolutions and war Relative to other literature on nonlinear dynamical systems theory NDS this book is unique in that it integrates new developments in NDS with substantive psychological theory It builds on many recent developments in organizational theory to show that nonlinear dynamics were often implicit in those works all along The result is an entirely new way of viewing social events understanding change processes and asking questions about social systems This book also contains much new empirical work and explains the newly developed methods for testing these new hypotheses

Prediction and Recognition of Piracy Efforts Using Collaborative Human-Centric Information Systems E. Bossé, E. Shahbazian, G.

Rogova,2013-03-21 Maritime piracy is the cause of widespread international concern and the number of pirate attacks has increased substantially in recent years Many commercial vessels are inherently vulnerable to attack because of their size and relative slowness and technological improvements have resulted in smaller crews on large vessels whilst the absence of enforcement agencies in international waters has served only to make pirates more daring Collaborative human centric information support systems can significantly improve the ability of every nation to predict and prevent pirate attacks or to recognize the nature and size of an attack rapidly when prevention fails and improve the collective response to an emergency This book presents the papers delivered at the NATO Advanced Study Institute ASI Prediction and Recognition of Piracy Efforts Using Collaborative Human Centric Information Systems held in Salamanca Spain in September 2011 A significant observation from previous NATO Advanced Study Institutes and Workshops was that domain experts responsible for maritime security were not fully aware of the wide variety of technological solutions available to enhance their support systems and that although technology experts have a general understanding of the requirements in security systems they often lacked knowledge concerning the operational constraints affecting those who implement security procedures This ASI involved both technology and domain experts as well as students from related fields of study It offered an opportunity for them to discuss the issues surrounding the prediction recognition and deterrence of maritime piracy and will be of interest to all those whose work is related to this internationally important issue
