Race and Gender in the Classroom Laurie Cooper Stoll, 2013-07-22 Race and Gender in the Classroom explores the paradoxes of education race and gender as Laurie Cooper Stoll follows eighteen teachers carrying out their roles as educators in an era of post racial and post gendered politics Because there are a number of contentious issues converging simultaneously in these teachers everyday lives this is a book comprised of several interrelated stories On the one hand this is a story about teachers who care deeply about their students but are generally oblivious to the ways in which their words and behaviors reinforce dominant narratives about race and gender constructing for their students a worldview in which race and gender do not matter despite their students lived experiences demonstrating otherwise This is a story about dedicated overworked teachers who are trying to keep their heads above water while meeting the myriad demands placed upon them in a climate of high stakes testing This is a story about the disconnect between those who mandate educational policy like superintendents and school boards and the teachers who are expected to implement those policies often with little or no input and few resources This is ultimately a story however about how the institution of education itself operates in a post racial and post gendered society

Burn and Pratt Adams, former primary school teachers who have both experienced these unfair gender practices, also trace the historical roots of the gender barriers that have now become embedded within the occupational culture. Throughout Men Teaching Children 3-11, the authors argue that primary school teachers should be judged by their teaching talents rather than by the application of biased gender stereotypes and that male and female teachers need to work together to remove these stereotypes from the occupation.

This international collection of critical essays provides compelling insight into the lived realities of ethnic Other females in sport. Throughout the book, contributors either draw on the political consciousnesses of Other feminisms or privilege the voices of ethnic Other girls and women so as to broaden, diversify and advance critical thinking pertaining to ethnic Other females in sport and physical culture. The purpose of the collection is both to produce knowledge and privilege otherwise subjugated knowledges which individually and collectively present counter narratives that better speak to the lived realities of racially oppressed groups of women and girls.
