Development in Context Robert H. Wozniak, Kurt W. Fischer, 2014-02-04 In this volume leading developmentalists address the question of how children's thinking develops in context by drawing on the theories of Vygotsky Gibson and Piaget Analyses of the ecology and the dynamics of behavior have become popular emphasizing the particulars of people acting in specific environments and the many complex factors of human body and mind that contribute to action and thought This volume brings together many of the current efforts to deal with development in this richly ecological dynamic way The research reported demonstrates that recent years have produced major shifts in approach Activities are studied as they naturally occur in everyday contexts Children's active construction of the world around them is treated as fundamentally social in nature occurring in families with peers and in cultures Behavior is studied not as something disembodied but within a rich matrix of body emotion belief value and physical world Behavior is analyzed as changing dynamically not only over seconds and minutes but over hours days and years

Thinking Across Cultures Donald M. Topping, Doris C. Crowell, Victor N. Kobayashi, 2013-09-05 This volume compares and contrasts contemporary theories of cognition modes of perception and learning from cross cultural perspectives The participants were asked to consider and assess the question of whether people from different cultures think differently Moreover they were asked to consider whether the same approaches to teaching and development of thinking will work in all cultures as well as they do in Western literate societies

Creating Consilience Edward Slingerland, Mark Collard, 2012-01-19 Calls for a consilient or vertically integrated approach to the study of human mind and culture have for the most part been received by scholars in the humanities with either indifference or hostility One reason for this is that consilience has often been framed as bringing the study of humanistic issues into line with the study of non human phenomena rather than as something to which humanists and scientists contribute equally The other major reason that consilience has yet to catch on in the humanities is a dearth of compelling examples of the benefits of adopting a consilient approach Creating Consilience is the product of a workshop that brought together internationally renowned scholars from a variety of fields to address both of these issues It includes representative pieces from workshop speakers and participants that examine how adopting such a consilient stance informed by cognitive science and grounded in evolutionary theory would concretely impact specific topics in the humanities examining each topic in a manner that not only cuts across the humanities natural science divide but also across individual humanistic disciplines By taking seriously the fact that science humanities integration is a two way exchange this volume takes a new approach to bridging the cultures of science and the humanities The editors and contributors formulate how to develop a new shared framework of consilience beyond mere interdisciplinarity in a way that both sides can accept

Metaphor Beate Hampe, 2017-06-29 Metaphor theory has shifted from asking whether metaphor is conceptual or linguistic to debating whether it is embodied or discursive Although recent work in the social and cognitive sciences has yielded clear opportunities to resolve that dispute the divide between discourse and cognition oriented approaches has remained To unite the field this book brings together leading metaphor researchers from a number of disciplines It collects major arguments and presents a wide variety of empirical evidence placing special emphasis on the embodiment and socio cultural embeddedness of cognition as well as the multi modal and social interactive nature of communication It shows that metaphor theory can only profit from an approach that takes multiple perspectives into consideration and tries to account for findings yielded by multiple methodologies By doing so it works towards a dynamic multi dimensional socio cognitive model of metaphor that goes beyond what research traditions have separately achieved Action, Perception and the Brain J.

Schulkin,2012-02-07 Theories of brain evolution stress communication and sociality are essential to our capacity to represent objects as intersubjectively accessible How did we grow as a species to be able to recognize objects as common as that which can also be seen in much the same way by others Such constitution of intersubjectively accessible objects is bound up with our flexible and sophisticated capacities for social cognition understanding others and their desires intentions emotions and moods which are crucial to the way human beings live This book is about contemporary philosophical and neuroscientific perspectives on the relation of action perception and cognition as it is lived in embodied and socially embedded experience This emphasis on embodiment and embeddedness is a change from traditional theories which focused on isolated representational and conceptual cognition In the new perspectives contained in our book such pure cognition is thought to be under girded and interpenetrated by embodied and embedded processes Neuroscience, Neurophilosophy and Pragmatism T. Solymosi,J. Shook,2014-11-23 Bringing together active neuroscientists neurophilosophers and scholars this volume considers the prospects of a neuroscientifically informed pragmatism and a pragmatically informed neuroscience on issues ranging from the nature of mental life to the implications of neuroscience for education and ethics
