Eastwood, MD,2019-02-01 Death is the destiny we all share and this will not change Yet the way we die which had remained the same for many generations has changed drastically in a relatively short time for those in developed countries with access to healthcare For generations if people were lucky enough to reach old age not having died in infancy or childhood in childbirth in war or by accident they would take to bed surrounded by loved ones who cared for them and fade into death Most likely they would have seen their parents and grandparents die the same way and so this manner of dying would be familiar it was part of the natural cycle of life Now less than 25 per cent of Americans die at home having reached much older ages than people would have dreamed of in past generations often after surviving many illnesses and even diseases that would have been terminal for their grandparents We are fortunate to live and die today supported by myriad scientific medical and technological advancements however we also face new problems as a result of the new way in which we die We can no longer anticipate a peaceful waning at home with family We know our lives will likely end in hospitals likely after we have endured grueling treatments to prolong life We have to decide what decisions we want our loved ones or care givers to make when we cannot choose for ourselves We have to think about whether in any circumstances we would seek physician assisted death We know we face other questions as well but we may not even know where to start In the face of these decisions we can feel daunted and afraid The best remedy is information and planning In this book Gregory Eastwood a physician who has cared for dying patients served as an ethics consultant and taught end of life issues to medical and other health profession students draws from his substantial experience with patients and families to provide the information that will help us think clearly about the choices and issues we will face at the end of our own lives and when faced with the deaths of our loved ones With sensitivity and profound insight Eastwood guides us through all the important questions about death and dying in straightforward clear language enhanced by real life stories Throughout he shows us how we can take ownership of the way we want to die when we must die and feel more in control as death approaches Our Story Begins Tobias Wolff,2009-04-07 This collection of stories twenty one classics followed by ten
