Morgan,2007-01-01 Richard L Morgan has carved a niche as a bestselling author and an authority on older adult ministries and concerns Now he chronicles his own transition to a retirement community Morgan speaks frankly about the losses and realities as he approached his own not yet frail fourth quarter after age 75 Drawing from his journals of those sometimes agonizing months he takes us through his decision to move to a long term facility and the first year of settling in The retirement community became my home and I must confront the inevitable illnesses of old age every day Morgan writes While I could not minimize the difficulties and issues I faced in this new lifestyle it gave me a view of this life as an insider I became a participant not an observer as before in my ministry Morgan addresses the fears of life after 75 loss of health cognitive ability short term memory independence and status Fifty two scripture passages meditations and prayers offer hope for those along this intense pilgrimage As one reviewer says Settling In speaks loudly of the continuing call of a God with hands outstretched who is always challenging us to further horizons larger concerns and constantly surprising us with news to love and be loved Morgan s soul baring reflections are invaluable for those considering a move to a retirement community current residents their family and friends
