Running Home Katie Arnold, 2020-09-08 In the tradition of Wild and H Is for Hawk an Outside magazine writer tells her story of fathers and daughters grief and renewal adventure and obsession and the power of running to change your life NAMED ONE OF THE BEST BOOKS OF THE YEAR BY REAL SIMPLE I m running to forget and to remember For more than a decade Katie Arnold chased adventure around the world reporting on extreme athletes who performed outlandish feats walking high lines a thousand feet off the ground without a harness or running one hundred miles through the night She wrote her stories by living them until eventually life on the thin edge of risk began to seem normal After she married Katie and her husband vowed to raise their daughters to be adventurous too in the mountains and canyons of New Mexico But when her father died of cancer she was forced to confront her own mortality His death was cataclysmic unleashing a perfect storm of grief and anxiety She and her father an enigmatic photographer for National Geographic had always been kindred spirits He introduced her to the outdoors and took her camping and on bicycle trips and down rivers and taught her to find solace and courage in the natural world And it was he who encouraged her to run her first race when she was seven years old Now nearly paralyzed by fear and terrified she was dying too she turned to the thing that had always made her feel most alive running Over the course of three tumultuous years she ran alone through the wilderness logging longer and longer distances first a 50 kilometer ultramarathon then 50 miles then 100 kilometers She ran to heal her grief to outpace her worry that she wouldn't live to raise her own daughters She ran to find strength in her weakness She ran to remember and to forget She ran to live Ultrarunning tests the limits of human endurance over seemingly inhuman distances and as she clocked miles across mesas and mountains Katie learned to tolerate pain and discomfort and face her fears of uncertainty vulnerability and even death itself As she ran she found herself peeling back the layers of her relationship with her father discovering that much of what she thought she knew about him and her own past was wrong Running Home is a memoir about the stories we tell ourselves to make sense of our world the stories that hold us back and the ones that set us free Mesmerizing transcendent and deeply exhilarating it is a book for anyone who has been knocked over by life or feels the pull of something bigger and wilder within themselves A beautiful work of searching remembrance and searing honesty Katie Arnold is as gifted on the page as she is on the trail Running Home will soon join such classics as Born to Run and Ultramarathon Man as quintessential reading of the genre Hampton Sides author of On Desperate Ground and Ghost Soldiers Symposium on Comprehensive Health Care for Addicted Families and Their Children Richard Brotman, George M. Beschner, 1977

Writing Against God Joanne Halleran McMullen, 1996 Readers approaching Flannery O'Connor's work without knowledge of her Catholicism may find little evidence of it in her fiction Yet readers who come to O'Connor's work with a prior awareness of her faith as evidenced for example in her essays and correspondence believe that her Catholicism suffuses every sentence of her fictional canon Writing against God explores the difficulty of reconciling O'Connor's private and public insistence on the importance of Catholicism in her work with the fiction her readers encounter on the printed page O'Connor's linguistic choices often move her fiction out of her control producing a message in conflict with the one she stated she intended Through a detailed examination of O'Connor's language in her two novels and in short stories that span her career McMullen exposes a pervasive spiritual environment often in opposition to the Roman Catholic tenets O'Connor professed Blending a reader response approach with linguistic analysis Writing against God offers explanations for the mysteries surrounding and the mysteries within O'Connor's fiction Divine Substitution Stephen L. Herring, 2013-11-20 Divine Substitution is an investigation of ancient conceptualizations of divine presence Specifically this thesis investigates the possibility that the ancient Mesopotamian conceptualization of cultic and royal statues thought to actually manifest the presence of gods and kings can likewise be found in ancient Israel Despite the overly pessimistic view of the later biblical authors material objects were almost certainly believed to extend and manifest the presence of God in pre-exilic Israel e.g. standing stones Likewise the later polemics against such cultic concepts demonstrate Israel's familiarity with this type of conceptualization These polemics engaged in the rhetoric of mutilation and destruction of cultic representations the erasure and re-inscription of divine names and the rhetorical deconstruction of the specific Mesopotamian rituals thought to transform the dead statue into a living god Though the biblical reflection of these concepts is more often found in the negative commentary regarding foreign cultic practices S Herring demonstrates that these opinions were not universally held At least three biblical texts Gen 1 26f Ex 34 29 34 and Ezek 36 37 portray the conceptualization that material images could manifest the divine presence in positive terms Yet these positive attestations were limited to a certain type of material image humans

The Dead Fish Museum Charles D'Ambrosio, 2006-04-18 In the fall I went for walks and brought home bones The best bones weren't on trails deer and moose don't die conveniently and soon I was wandering so far into the woods that I needed a map and compass to find my way home When winter came and snow blew into the mountains burying the bones I continued to spend my days and often my nights in the woods I vaguely understood that I was doing this because I could no longer think I found relief in walking up hills When the night temperatures dropped below zero I felt visited by necessity a baseline purpose and I walked for miles my only objective to remain upright keep moving preserve warmth When I was lost I told myself stories So Charles D'Ambrosio recounted his life in Philipsburg Montana the genesis of the brilliant stories collected here six of which originally appeared in The New Yorker Each of these eight burnished terrifying masterfully crafted stories is set against a landscape that is both deeply American and unmistakably universal A son confronts his father's madness and his own hunger for connection on a misguided hike in the Pacific Northwest A screenwriter fights for his sanity in the bleak corridors of a Manhattan psych ward while lusting after a ballerina who sets herself ablaze A Thanksgiving hunting trip in Northern Michigan becomes the scene of a haunting reckoning with marital infidelity and desperation And in the magnificent title story carpenters building sets for a porn movie drift dreamily beneath a surface of sexual tension toward a racial violence they will never fully comprehend Taking place in remote cabins asylums Indian reservations the backroads of Iowa and the streets of Seattle this collection of stories as muscular and challenging as the best novels is about people who have been orphaned who have lost connection and who have exhausted the ability to generate meaning in their lives Yet in the midst of lacerating difficulty the sensibility at work in these fictions boldly insists on the enduring power of love D'Ambrosio conjures a world that is fearfully inhospitable darkly humorous and touched by glory here are characters tested by every kind of failure who struggle to remain human whose lives have been sharpened rather than numbed by adversity whose apprehension of truth and beauty has been deepened rather than defeated by their troubles Many writers speak of the abyss Charles D'Ambrosio writes as if he is inside of it gazing upward and the gaze itself is redemptive a great yearning ache poignant and wondrous equal parts grit and grace A must read for everyone who cares about literary writing The Dead Fish Museum belongs on the same shelf with the best American short fiction
