Outcast From Social Welfare:

Social Welfare with Indigenous Peoples Professor John Dixon, John Dixon, Robert P. Scheurell, 2002-09-11 In many areas of the world there has been an earlier indigenous population which has been conquered by a more recent population group In Social Welfare with Indigenous Peoples the editors and contributors examine the treatment of many indigenous populations from five continental areas Africa Sierra Leone Zimbabwe Australasia New Zealand Central and South America Brazil Mexico Europe Scandinavia Spain and North America They found that regardless of whether the newer immigrants became the majority population as in North America or the minority population such as in Africa there were many similarities in how the indigenous peoples were treated and in their current situations This treatment is examined from many perspectives political subjugation negligence shifting focus of social policy social and legal discrimination provision of social services and ethnic cultural and political rejuvenation Social Poetics Mark Nowak, 2020-03-10 Social Poetics documents the imaginative militancy and emergent solidarities of a new insurgent working class poetry community rising up across the globe Part autobiography part literary criticism part Marxist theory Social Poetics presents a people's history of the poetry workshop from the founding director of the Worker Writers School Nowak illustrates not just what poetry means but what it does to and for people outside traditional literary spaces from taxi drivers to street vendors and other workers of the world

Foster Youth in the Mediasphere Milissa Deitz,Lynette Sheridan Burns,2022-11-16 This book considers the impact of digital media and technology on lived experience for young people in foster care While the extent and intricacies of foster care known as out of home care OOHC in Australia where this study takes place are not widely understood by the general public youth in care might struggle to construct a personal identity that goes beyond reflecting the stereotypes and stigma by which they are often recognised In today s digital environment media can play a significant role in any individual s developing sense of self identity and belonging Deitz and Sheridan Burns examine OOHC through the lens of networked media environments and investigate the conditions that encourage belonging and resilience in order to establish the role that digital technology can play in supporting those conditions for individuals family networks and the care sector

Cumulated Index Medicus ,1976 Forming Nation, Framing Welfare Gail Lewis,2006-02-06 This book introduces a historical perspective on the emergence and development of social welfare Starting from the familiar ground of the family it traces some of the crucial historical roots and desires that fed the development of social policy in the 19th and 20th centuries around education the family unemployment and nationhood By aiming to discover the link between past and present it shows that social problems are socially constructed in specific contexts and that there are diverse and competing ways of telling history

Housing the Homeless Jon Erickson,Charles Wilhelm,2017-07-12 Homelessness has become a lasting issue of vital social concern As the number of the homeless has grown the complexity of the issue has become increasingly clear to researchers and private and public service providers The plight of the homeless raises many ethical anthropological political sociological and public health questions The most serious and perplexing of these questions is what steps private charitable and public organizations can take to alleviate and eventually solve the problem The concept of homelessness is difficult to define and measure Generally persons are thought to be homeless if they have no permanent residence and seek security rest and protection from the elements The homeless typically live in areas that are not designed to be shelters e.g. parks, bus terminals, under bridges, in cars, occupy structures without permission e.g. squatters or are provided emergency shelter by a public or private agency. Some definitions of homelessness include persons living on a short term basis in single room occupancy hotels or motels or temporarily residing in social or health service facilities without a permanent address. Housing the Homeless is a collection of case studies that bring together a variety of perspectives to help develop a clear understanding of the homelessness problem. The editors include information on the background and politics of the problem and descriptions of the current homeless population. The book concludes with a resource section which highlights governmental policies and programs established to deal with the problem of homelessness.

Herbert Spencer John Offer, 2000. This set traces Herbert Spencer's influence from his contemporaries to the present day. Contributions come from across the social science disciplines and are often taken from sources which are difficult to access.

Advanced Introduction to Urban Segregation Sako Musterd, 2023-12-11. This insightful Advanced Introduction deftly explores urban segregation on an international scale, offering expert analysis on pressing and theoretical debates and key contemporary issues relating to this interdisciplinary field of study. It provides detailed insights into the various dimensions and domains of urban segregation, the range of methods used for measuring segregation and the effects it can have on neighbourhoods and individuals. Recognising variations in the patterns of segregation from country to country, the book further discusses the different approaches and challenges affecting policy interventions. The Politics of Expertise Matthew Hilton, James McKay, Nicholas Crowson, Jean-François Mouhot, 2013-04-25. The Politics of Expertise offers a challenging new interpretation of politics in contemporary Britain through an examination of non-governmental organisations. Using specific case studies of the homelessness environment and international aid and development sectors, it demonstrates how politics and political activism has changed over the last half century. NGOs have contributed enormously to a professionalization and a privatization of politics, emerging as a new form of expert knowledge and political participation. They have been led by a new breed of non-party politician working in collaboration and in competition with government. Skilful navigators of the modern technocratic state, they have brought expertise to expertise and in so doing have changed the nature of grassroots activism. As affluent citizens have felt marginalised by the increasingly complex nature of many policy solutions, they have made the rational calculation to support NGOs, the professionalism and resources of which make them better able to tackle complex problems. Yet in doing so, support rather than participation becomes the more appropriate way to describe the relationship of the public to NGOs. As voter turnout has declined, membership and trust in NGOs has increased. But NGOs are very different types of organisations from the classic democratic institutions of political parties and the labour movement. They maintain different and varied relationships with the publics they seek to represent. Attracting mass support has provided them with the resources and the legitimacy to speak to power on a bewildering range of issues, yet perhaps the ultimate victors in this new form of politics are the NGOs themselves. Ohio Welfare Bulletin, 1928.
