   Self-Cultivation Philosophies in Ancient India, Greece, and China Christopher W. Gowans,2021-08-27 Philosophies in several ancient traditions aimed to alleviate people s anxieties and improve their lives In contrast to the contemporay world in which philosophy is mostly an academic subject and personal concerns are commonly addressed by psychological therapies philosophy in these traditions often played a central role in programs that aspired to enable people to achieve a good life In this volume Christopher W Gowans argues that the idea of self cultivation philosophy provides a valuable approach for comprehending and reflecting on several philosophies in ancient India Greece and China Self cultivation philosophies put forward a program of development for ameliorating the lives of human beings On the basis of an account of human nature and the place of human beings in the world they claim that our lives can be substantially transformed from what is thought to be a problematic condition into what purports to be an ideal state of being Self cultivation philosophies are preeminently practical in their aspirations their purpose is to change human life in fundamental ways Yet in pursuing these practical ends these philosophies typically make significant theoretical as well as empirical claims about human nature and the world The book shows how the concept of self cultivation philosophy provides an interpretive framework for understanding comparing assessing and learning from several philosophical outlooks in India the Greco Roman world and China The self cultivation philosophies in India are those expressed in the Bhagavad Gita the Samkhya and Yoga philosophies of Isvarakrsna and Patanjali and the teaching of the Buddha and his followers Buddhaghosa and Santideva The philosophies originating in Greece with subsequent development in the Roman world are the most prominent Hellenistic approaches the Epicureanism of Epicurus Lucretius and Philodemus the Stoicism of Chrysippus Epictetus and Seneca and Pyrrho and the Pyrrhonism of Sextus Empiricus The self cultivation philosophies from China are the early Confucian outlooks of Confucius Mencius and Xunzi the classical Daoist perspectives of the Daodejing and the Zhuangzi and the Chan tradition of Bodhidharma Huineng and Linji Though these philosophies developed in very different traditions Gowans shows the connections between them in this compelling work of comparative philosophy   The Scottish Farmer ,1921

   Contextualising The International Covenant On Economic, Social And Cultural Rights Mary Dowell-Jones,2004 This work studies the economic foundations of the international covenant on economic social and cultural rights It is argued that legal principles alone cannot fully actualise this instrument only sustained inter disciplinary elaboration of its guarantees can give this instrument full effect
