Conventional Wisdom, Parties, and Broken Barriers in the 2016 Election Jennifer C. Lucas, Tauna Starbuck Sisco, Christopher J. Galdieri, 2017-11-20 The 2016 presidential election was unconventional in many ways The election of President Donald Trump caught many by surprise with a true outsider a candidate with no previous governmental experience and mixed support from his own party won the election by winning in traditionally Democratic states with coattails that extended to Republican Senate candidates and resulted in unified Republican government for the first time since 2008 This result broke with the pre election conventional wisdom which expected Hillary Clinton to win the presidency and a closer Senate divide This surprising result led many political scientists to question whether 2016 truly marked a major turning point in American elections as portrayed in the media a break from the conventional wisdom or whether it was really the exception that proved the rule In this volume political scientists examine previous theories and trends in light of the 2016 election to determine the extent to which 2016 was a break from previous theories While in some areas it seems as though 2016 was really just what would have been predicted in others this election and the new president pose significant challenges to mainstream theories in political science In particular prominent political scientists examine whether voter trends with particular focus on groups by gender age geography and ethnicity and election issues especially the role of the Supreme Court followed or bucked recent trends Several political scientists examine the unconventional nomination process and whether this signals a new era for political parties The role of conspiracy theories and voter confidence in the administration of elections are also discussed Finally contributors also examine the indirect effect the presidential candidates especially Trump played in congressional election rhetoric Kelly Air Force Base (AFB), Disposal and Reuse ,1997 Departments of Commerce, Justice, and State, the Judiciary, and Related Agencies Appropriations for 2004 United States.
