

An aerial photograph of a suburban neighborhood. A large, well-manicured green lawn occupies the center of the frame. A concrete sidewalk runs diagonally from the bottom left towards the top left. On the left side of the sidewalk, a small group of people, including a child on a tricycle and an adult, are walking. In the top left corner, a portion of a light blue house with white trim and a window is visible. On the right side of the lawn, a person is sitting on the grass near a small white object. The overall scene depicts a peaceful, residential environment.

Democracy and Political Ignorance Ilya Somin,2013-10-02 One of the biggest problems with modern democracy is that most of the public is usually ignorant of politics and government Often many people understand that their votes are unlikely to change the outcome of an election and don t see the point in learning much about politics This may be rational but it creates a nation of people with little political knowledge and little ability to objectively evaluate what they do know In Democracy and Political Ignorance Ilya Somin mines the depths of ignorance in America and reveals the extent to which it is a major problem for democracy Somin weighs various options for solving this problem arguing that political ignorance is best mitigated and its effects lessened by decentralizing and limiting government Somin provocatively argues that people make better decisions when they choose what to purchase in the market or which state or local government to live under than when they vote at the ballot box because they have stronger incentives to acquire relevant information and to use it wisely

The Gridlock Economy Michael Heller, 2010-02-23 25 new runways would eliminate most air travel delays in America Why can't we build them 50 patent owners are blocking a major drug maker from creating a cancer cure Why won't they get out of the way 90% of our broadcast spectrum sits idle while American cell phone service lags far behind Japan's and Korea's Why are we wasting our airwaves 98% of African American owned farms have been sold off over the last century Why can't we stop the loss All these problems are really the same problem one whose solution would jump start innovation release trillions in productivity and help revive our slumping economy Every so often an idea comes along that transforms our understanding of how the world works Michael Heller has discovered a market dynamic that no one knew existed Usually private ownership creates wealth but too much ownership has the opposite effect it creates gridlock When too many people own pieces of one thing whether a physical or intellectual resource cooperation breaks down wealth disappears and everybody loses Heller's paradox is at the center of The Gridlock Economy Today's leading edge of innovation in high tech biomedicine music film real estate requires the assembly of separately owned resources But gridlock is blocking economic growth all along the wealth creation frontier A thousand scholars have applied and verified Heller's paradox Now he takes readers on a lively tour of gridlock battlegrounds Heller zips from medieval robber barons to modern day broadcast spectrum squatters from Mississippi courts selling African American family farms to troubling New York City land confiscations and from Chesapeake Bay oyster pirates to today's gene patent and music mash up outlaws Each tale offers insights into how to spot gridlock in operation and how we can overcome it The Gridlock Economy is a startling accessible biography of an idea Nothing is inevitable about gridlock It results from choices we make about how to control the resources we value most We can unlock the grid this book shows us where to start Federalism and Subsidiarity James E. Fleming, Jacob T

Levy, 2014-06-27 In Federalism and Subsidiarity a distinguished interdisciplinary group of scholars in political science law and philosophy address the application and interaction of the concept of federalism within law and government What are the best justifications for and conceptions of federalism What are the most useful criteria for deciding what powers should be allocated to national governments and what powers reserved to state or provincial governments What are the implications of the principle of subsidiarity for such questions What should be the constitutional standing of cities in federations Do we need to remap federalism to reckon with the emergence of translocal and transnational organizations with porous boundaries that are not reflected in traditional jurisdictional conceptions Examining these questions and more this latest installation in the NOMOS series sheds new light on the allocation of power within federations Housing America Randall G.

Holcombe, 2017-07-05 Housing policy not only affects all Americans quality of life but has a direct impact on their financial well being About 70 percent of American households own their own homes and for most their homes represent the majority of their net worth Renters are affected by housing policy Even the small minority of Americans who are homeless are affected by housing policies specifically targeted to low income individuals The government's increasing involvement in housing markets fed by popular demand that government do something to address real problems of mortgage defaults and loans provides good reason to take a new look at the public sector in housing markets Crises in prime mortgage lending may lower the cost of housing but the poor and homeless cannot benefit because of increases in unemployment Even the private market is heavily regulated Government policies dictate whether people can build new housing on their land what type of housing they can build the terms allowed in rental contracts and much more This volume considers the effects of government housing policies and what can be done to make them work better It shows that many problems are the result of government rules and regulations Even in a time of foreclosures the market can still do a crucial job of allocating resources just as it does in other markets Consequently the appropriate policy response may well be to significantly reduce not increase government presence in housing markets Housing America is a courageous and comprehensive effort to examine housing policies in the United States and to show how such policies affect the housing market
