Global Seagrass Research Methods F.T. Short,R.G. Coles,2001-11-06 This thorough and informative volume presents a set of detailed globally applicable techniques for seagrass research The book provides methods for all aspects of seagrass science from basic plant collection to statistical approaches and investigations of plant animal interaction The emphasis is on methods that are applicable in both developing and developed countries The importance of seagrasses in coastal and near shore environments and ultimately their contribution to the productivity of the world s oceans has become increasingly recognised over the last 40 years Seagrasses provide food for sea turtles nearly 100 fish species waterfowl and for the marine mammals the manatee and dugong Seagrasses also support complex food webs by virtue of their physical structure and primary production and are well known for their role as breeding grounds and nurseries for important crustacean finfish and shell fish populations Seagrasses are the basis of an important detrital food chain The plants filter nutrients and contaminants from the water stabilise sediments and act as dampeners to wave action Seagrasses rank with coral reefs and mangroves as some of the world s most productive coastal habitat and strong linkages among these habitats make the loss of seagrasses a contributing factor in the degradation of the world s oceans Contributors from around the world provide up to date methods for comparable collection of ecological information from both temperate and tropical seagrass ecosystems

Miguel Rey Salgado, 2008 Progress in Botany H.-Dietmar Behnke, Karl Esser, Klaus Kubitzki, Michael Runge, Hubert Ziegler, 2012-12-06 The 50th volume of Progress in Botany appears in new guise In cooperation with Springer Verlag we have changed from the less attractive typewriter composition to the direct reproduction of a manuscript which was written by means of a text editing system and produced by a laser printer We the editors should like to take the appearance of Volume 50 as the occasion for a few short remarks Our younger readers are perhaps not aware that our Book Series was founded in 1931 by Fritz von Wettstein based on the following thoughts and considerations aptly formulated by him in the Preface to the first volume One of the greatest dangers threatening progress in the science of botany is the absolutely unbelievable growth in volume of the literature The quality of journals books and individual works that are daily sent to us makes it impossible for anyone person to maintain a general view of the progress made in botany in all the specialized fields let alone to find time for results from associated subjects For varying reasons every botanist must find this state of matters insupportable Let us endeavor in the general interest to retain a wide background of knowledge and not become limited specialists The vitally necessary connections between the specialized fields can only flourish or even exist if the general view of botany as a whole can be maintained Faustino Miranda, una vida dedicada a la botánica Francisco Javier Dosil Mancilla, 2007
