New Directions For Student Services No 112 Winter 2005:

Technology in Student Affairs: Supporting Student Learning and Services Kevin Kruger, 2005 The literature and research on the use of technology in student affairs is still very limited This volume of New Direction for Student Services was written to increase our understanding of the role of technology in the student learning experience of campus based and as well as distance learners Information technology has become a central tool in creating 24 7 self service experiences for students interacting with campus administrative functions Recent technologies also create the real possibility of moving beyond administrative functions to playing a central role in student learning community development and student development This volume monograph attempts to capture the current thinking around the use of technology in student affairs It is not a review of the actual technologies in use in student affairs The pace of change is so fast that such a treatment would make the writing out of date within two years In that light this volume focuses less on the technology and more on the ways in which the technology is altering the organization of student affairs the ways in which the lines between campus based students and distance learners are blurring and the increasing role technology is playing in student learning

At Home with the Holocaust Lucas F. W. Wilson, 2025-03-11 At Home with the Holocaust examines the relationship between intergenerational trauma and domestic space focusing on how Holocaust survivors' homes became extensions of their traumatized psyches that their children inhabited Analyzing second and third generation Holocaust literature such as Art Spiegelman's Maus Jonathan Safran Foer's Everything Is Illuminated Sonia Pilcer's The Holocaust Kid and Elizabeth Rosner's The Speed of Light as well as oral histories of children of survivors Lucas F W Wilson's study reveals how the material conditions of survivor family homes along with household practices and belongings rendered these homes as spaces of traumatic transference As survivors' traumas became imbued in the very space of the domestic their homes functioned as material archives of their Holocaust pasts creating environments that not uncommonly second handedly wounded their children As survivor family homes were imaginatively transformed by survivors children into the sites of their parents traumas like concentration camps and ghettos their homes catalyzed the transmission of these traumas Child Welfare for the Twenty-first Century Gerald P.
