

Harrison's words are so real and are about such real things that at first they sound like something you must have heard someone say out loud, perhaps some tentatively friendly but formidable man in the kind of bar where you lay out your table stakes before you order your shot. And indeed most of us would have to be drinking or would have to be reborn as courageous poets before we could dare speak of our boredom, our love, our fear, our death, as freely as Harrison does. But then as we hear a little more, we realize how much this man knows about these things, and how artfully the wit of his speech works with the deep design of his form and the intelligence of his imagination to help us understand things, too.

—JOHN A. THOMERSON

Jim Harrison grew up in Northern Michigan and shares with that other Michigan poet, Theodore Roethlis, not only the longing to be part of the instinctual world, but also the remarkable knowledge of plant and animal life that comes only with long familiarity and close observation. This raises an incidental question: How many more poets of his kind will we see in the United States? It is a melancholy thought that Mr. Harrison may be one of the last of the species.

Contemporary Ghazals R. Watkins, 2017-03-06 The Canada into which Contemporary Ghazals No 1 was published in the summer of 2003 was not exactly a hospitable one The Canadian literary scene of the day was simply out of sync with editor R W Watkins's higher technical standards and international poetic perspective Too formal and intellectual for the artsy hipster division of Generation X represented by such publications as Broken Pencil and This Magazine too exotic and indie for the academics and writers organisations e.g. The League of Canadian Poets who in the words of Watkins merely take solace in each other's mediocrity the magazine failed to attract contributors or readers in its native country even among members of the supposedly more Eastern attuned haiku community Fortunately the publication managed to get a foot in the door south of the border where Kashmiri born poet Agha Shahid Ali 1949-2001 had stirred up enough interest in the ghazal to warrant compiling and editing the Ravishing DisUnities anthology a few years earlier Watkins was the only Canadian included in said book Despite a series of delays that prevented the third issue from being published in a timely manner owing largely to a move away from zine culture and subsequent adjustments to a digital environment Contemporary Ghazals continued to build a following in the US and abroad up until its discontinuation in 2016 when Watkins chose to replace it with Eastern Structures a magazine more inclusive of various other Asian poetic forms Drawing on material from the first three issues this concise Contemporary Ghazals collection features modern examples of the ancient Asian form by such accomplished and regular practitioners as Steffen Horstmann Denver Butson Barbara Little the recently deceased I H Rizvi and Watkins himself This sampler is actually the first in a series of slated CG related archival publications from Nocturnal Iris so watch this space Contemporary Ghazals R. W. Watkins, Denver Butson, Steffen Horstmann, Agha Shahid Ali, 2014-10-11 From the pages of his indie literary magazine comes editor R W Watkins s Contemporary Ghazals An Anthology This volume collects the best poems from the rarely published yet groundbreaking journal dedicated to the classic Arabic and Persian form that lends it its title This book also reflects the development of the English language ghazal in general since the turn of the 21st century for its pages are populated almost exclusively by regular practitioners of the form in English As Watkins points out in the introduction the majority of regular practitioners have been published at some time or another in an issue of Contemporary Ghazals This is what distinguishes this collection from the first English language ghazals anthology Agha Shahid Ali s Ravishing DisUnities 2000 which was comprised largely of then novices and name poets who dabbled Thus one shall find in this anthology the ghazals of such prominent poets as I H Rizvi of India and the late Kashmiri American Agha Shahid Ali Alongside their work can be found that of such longtime U S practitioners as William Dennis Denver Butson Steffen Horstmann and Barbara Little Also to be found is the work of relative newcomers like Vivek Sharma and Nicola Masciandaro who have established themselves as contenders in just a short while As well Canadian editor Watkins himself is represented by some of the more experimental ghazals in the anthology The result is a collection that can most definitely stand as the form s canon in English Outlier and Ghazals Jim Harrison, 1969 Slivers of a Mirror Shama Futehally, 2006-01-01 For nearly three centuries the Urdu ghazal has been beloved of connoisseur and layman alike This translation attempts to capture the best qualities of the ghazal in a contemporary voice Many of the enduring names of the ghazal are to be found here from the early mystic Siraj Aurangabadi through the great Ghalib to modern poets like Faiz and Sahir Ludhianvi Urdu and Devnagri renderings of the poems ensure that the originals are also accessible to many readers retaining the essence of ghazals Masterpieces of Urdu Ghazal from the 17th to the 20th Century , 1992-01-01 Selected Urdu ghazals with English translation includes text and introduction Urdu Ghazals K.
