Congress. House. Committee on Appropriations. Subcommittee on Military Construction, Veterans Affairs, and Related Agencies,2016 Health Planning Bibliography Series ,1976 A Guide to Substance Abuse Treatment Benefits Under the Federal Employees Health Benefits Program for ... ,1988 Pricing health services: Transaction cost approach Monika Raulinajtys-Grzybek,2015-03-04 The study is the result of the research on the transaction costs of the pricing of health services Due to the fact that the regulations in terms of pricing include activities that lead to price setting of a good health service costs associated with these activities should be treated as transaction costs According to the assumptions of classical economics the price should be set at the intersection of the supply and demand curve under the assumption of full information and rationality of market participants The primary objective of the study is to identify the transaction costs occurring during the pricing of health services and relate these cost to the institutional environment and the organization of pricing transaction and characterize the factors that affect the level of transaction costs to present the force and direction of the relationship between each of the factors and the level of transaction costs. An additional objective of this study is to link the conclusions about the level of transaction costs to the conclusions regarding the accuracy of the cost based pricing in health care. The accuracy of the pricing system is related to the degree to which the price structure reflects the actual cost structure of the health services. The institutional approach will add up to the existing research on the importance of cost information for the pricing of health services. The empirical part of the work was carried out based on the analysis of primary and secondary sources. Its aim was to present how pricing is organized in seventeen countries selected.

Global spending on health: coping with the pandemic World Health Organization, 2024-01-30. The report shows that global spending on health continued to increase in 2021, the second year of the pandemic, to US$ 9.8 trillion, 10.3% of global GDP. The increase in spending was driven by higher government spending and out of pocket spending. In low income countries, external aid for health played an important role in supporting government spending. Sustaining government spending and external aid at 2021 levels could however prove challenging given the deterioration in global economic conditions, rising inflation and increased debt servicing obligations. The report also capitalizes on disaggregated spending information to provide new insights into the dynamics of increased global spending on health through the pandemic. Using data disaggregated by health service providers, it shows some of the ways that health service delivery systems coped with the COVID-19 pandemic. Hospitals, ambulatory care providers and pharmacies accounted for most health spending. Shifts were observed however in the composition of services within provider types, reflecting the new and evolving demands through the pandemic. Disaggregated spending data by disease and condition also shows a delicate balance between spending on COVID-19 and other diseases was maintained. The report also examines countries' health capital investment which shapes current operational capacity and are essential for forging a path toward effective and resilient health systems.
