Outsiders Inside Whiteness Place And Irish Women:

Outsiders Inside Bronwen Walter, 2002-05-03 Outsiders Inside provides a basis for Irish women's experiences within the range of white and black ethnicities and links cultural constructs of gendered ethnicity and racism to material conditions of everyday life

Unsettling Whiteness Lucy Michael, Samantha Schulz, 2019-01-04 This volume was first published by Inter Disciplinary Press in 2014 Unsettling Whiteness brings together an international collection that considers anew the politics practices and representations of whiteness at a time when nations worldwide continue to grapple with issues that are underwritten by whiteness

Whiteness Steve Garner, 2007-08-03 What is whiteness Why is it worth using as a tool in the social sciences Making sociological sense of the idea of whiteness this book skilfully argues how this concept can help us understand contemporary societies If one of sociology's objectives is to make the familiar unfamiliar in order to gain heightened understanding then whiteness offers a perfect opportunity to do so Leaning firstly on the North American corpus this key book critically engages with writings on the formation of white identities in Britain Ireland and the Americas using multidisciplinary sources Empirical work done in the UK including the author's own is developed in order to suggest how whiteness functions in Britain Bringing an emphasis on empirical work to a heavily theorized area this important text synthesizes and reviews existing work incorporates multidisciplinary sources of interest to those outside the sociology sphere and features concise chapters which will engage undergraduates Garner deftly argues that whiteness is a multifaceted contingent and fluid identity and that it must be incorporated into any contemporary understandings of racism as a system of power relationships in both its local and global forms

London the Promised Land Revisited Anne J. Kershen, 2016-03-09 Some two decades since the publication of London the Promised Land which charted and investigated the successes and failures of the migrant experience in London over a period of three hundred years this book re-examines the migrant landscape in London While remaining a beacon for immigrants the migrant face of the city has changed rapidly and dramatically from one which was heavily populated by semi skilled and unskilled post colonial incomers to one which now embraces the EU Accession Countries refugees from the Middle East and Africa oligarchs from Russia the new wealthy from China economic migrants from Latin America and Ireland and still post colonial immigrants at the same time witnessing the exodus home of incomers or their descendants who now see opportunities where there were none before The contributors all leading academics and practitioners in their diverse fields examine changes to the migrant landscape of contemporary London at the micro meso and macro levels London the Promised Land Revisited thus explores a range of experiences in the capital including the presence and treatment of illness amongst migrants the phenomenon of migrant invisibility and asylum the migrant marketplace and ethnic clustering and interaction with local and national government across a variety of migrant groups both new and old As such this book will appeal to scholars across the social sciences with interest in migration migrant experiences and the contemporary global city

The Best Are Leaving Clair Wills, 2015-02-09 Clair Wills's The Best Are Leaving is a study of representations of Irish emigrant culture and of Irish immigrants in Britain Catherine Cookson Country Julie Taddeo, 2016-12-05 Britain's most widely read author of the late twentieth century Catherine Cookson published more than 100 books including The Fifteen Streets The Black Velvet Gown and Katie Mulholland Set in England's industrial northeast her novels depict the social economic and emotional hardships of that area In the first essay collection devoted to Cookson the contributors examine what Cookson's memoirs and historical fiction mean to readers including how her fans contribute to her position in the cultural imaginary constructions of gender class and English and Irish identity in her work the importance of place in her novels Cookson's place in the heritage industry and television adaptations of Cookson's works Cookson's work tackled topics that were still taboo in the early post World War II era such as domestic abuse rape and incest This collection places Cookson in historical context and shows how skillful she was at pushing generic boundaries

Migrations Mary Gilmartin, Allen White, 2016-05-16 This edited collection explores Ireland's complex relationship with migration in novel and innovative ways The contributors leading scholars of migration from the disciplines of anthropology geography history media studies sociology sociolinguistics and women's studies draw on new research to provide insights into emigration from and immigration to Ireland both past and present The chapters which range from the nineteenth to the twenty first century cover topics as diverse as migrant women and children in Ireland the role of the Irish Catholic in migration networks and recent Irish migration to Australia They are organised around three cross cutting themes networks belonging and intersections They focus on the migratory process rather than on migration as a uni directional movement of people Though centred on Ireland the collection has broader implications for the ways in which migration is conceptualised The collection will appeal to scholars of migration and Irish studies and to readers with backgrounds in a range of social science and humanities disciplines including geography and sociology

Exhibiting Irishness Shahmima Akhtar, 2024-07-23 Exhibiting Irishness analyses how exhibitions enabled Irish individuals and groups to work out privately and publicly their politicised existences across two centuries As a cultural history of Irish identity the book considers exhibitions as a formative platform for imagining a host of Irish pasts presents and futures Fair organisers responded to the contexts of famine and poverty migration and diasporic settlement independence movements and partition as well as post colonial nation building My research demonstrates how Irish businesses and labourers the elite organisers of the fairs and successive Irish governments curated Irishness The central malleability of Irish identity on display emerged in tandem with the unfolding of Ireland's political transformation from a colony of the British Empire a migrant community in the United States to a divided Ireland in the form of the Republic and Northern Ireland

Immigrant Women's Voices and Integrating Feminism Into Migration Theory Nyemba, Florence, Chitiyo, Rufaro, 2020-12-25 Migration is a multifaceted phenomenon that plays a critical role in today's world yet there have been few attempts to look beneath the surface of the mass movements of people Particularly the changing face of migration is becoming more feminized with women increasingly moving as independent or single migrants rather than as the wives mothers or daughters of male migrants Yet in literature on migration the voices of women are still silent This creates an urgent need to advance academic research on female international migration by examining women as independent migrants Immigrant Women s Voices and Integrating Feminism Into Migration Theory comprehensively documents the experiences of immigrant women across the globe and the important theories that define their experiences The chapters give firsthand accounts of women speaking about their own experiences on migration and topics associated with women and migration This book aims to give women their own voice and to stand apart from previous literature in which male relatives spoke on behalf of immigrant women to tell their stories for them While highlighting topics on women in migration including feminism gendered social roles first person narratives and the female identity this book is ideally for professionals in social science disciplines as well as practitioners stakeholders researchers academicians and students wanting to expand their knowledge on women and migration gender violence and women empowerment

The International Migration of Health Workers John Connell, 2008-02-11 This volume provides the first detailed overview of the growing phenomenon of the international migration of skilled health workers The contributors focus on who migrates why they migrate what the outcomes are for them and their extended families what their experiences in the workforce are and ultimately the extent to which this expanding migration flow has a relationship to development issues It therefore provides new interdisciplinary reflections on such core issues as brain drain gender roles remittances and sustainable development at a time when there has never been greater interest in the migration of health workers

Gender and History Jyoti Atwal, Ciara Breathnach, Sarah-Anne Buckley, 2022-08-17 This book provides an overview of Irish gender history from the end of the Great Famine in 1852 until the foundation of the Irish Free State in 1922 It builds on the work that scholars of women s history pioneered and brings together internationally regarded experts to offer a synthesis of the current historiography and existing debates within the field The authors place emphasis on highlighting new and exciting sources methodologies and suggested areas for future research They address a variety of critical themes such as the family reproduction and sexuality the medical and prison systems masculinities and femininities institutions charity the missions migration elite women and the involvement of women in the Irish nationalist revolutionary period Envisioned to be both thematic and chronological the book provides insight into the comparative transnational and connected histories of Ireland India and the British empire An important contribution to the study of Irish gender history the volume offers opportunities for students and researchers to learn from the methods and historiography of Irish studies It will be useful for scholars and teachers of history gender studies colonialism post colonialism European history Irish history Irish studies and political history The Open Access version of this book available at www.taylorfrancis.com has been made available under a Creative Commons Attribution Non Commercial No Derivatives 4.0 license

Ireland in the World Angela McCarthy, 2015-06-12 This international edited book collection of ten original contributions from established and emerging scholars explores aspects of Ireland's place in the world since the 1780s. It imaginatively blends comparative transnational and personal perspectives to examine migration in a range of diverse geographical locations including Ireland, Scotland, Wales, Australia, New Zealand, the United States, Canada, Argentina, Jamaica, and the British Empire, more broadly. Deploying diverse sources including letters, interviews, press reports, convict records, and social media, contributors canvas important themes such as slavery, convicts, policing, landlordism, print culture, loyalism, nationalism, sectarianism, politics, and electronic media. A range of perspectives including Catholic and Protestant men and women, convicts, and settlers are included, and the volume is accompanied by a range of striking images. Intersectionality and Beyond Emily

Grabham, Davina Cooper, Jane Krishnadas, Didi Herman, 2008-08-21. This collection addresses the present and the future of the concept of intersectionality within socio-legal studies. Including contributions from a range of international scholars, this book interrogates what has become a key organizing concept across a range of disciplines, most particularly law, political theory, and cultural studies. Gendering Migration Wendy Webster, 2016-12-05. Gendering Migration demonstrates the significance of studying migration through the lens of gender and ethnicity and the contribution this perspective makes to migration histories. Through a consideration of the impact of migration on men and masculine identities as well as women and feminine identities, it extends our understanding of questions of gender and migration, focusing on the history of migration to Britain after the Second World War. The volume draws on oral narratives as well as documentary and archival research to demonstrate the important role played by gender and ethnicity both in ideas and images of migrants and in migrants' own experiences. The contributors consider a range of migrant and refugee groups who came to Britain in the twentieth century: Caribbean, East African, Asian, German, Greek, Irish, Kurdish, Pakistani, Polish, and Spanish. The fresh interpretations offered here make this an important new book for scholars and students of migration, ethnicity, gender, and modern British history.

Terror and the Dynamism of Islamophobia in 21st Century Britain Madeline-Sophie Abbas, 2021-08-04. This book provides powerful insights into the dynamics, nature, and experiences of the terrors of counter-terrorism measures in the UK. Abbas links her analysis to wider concerns of nation construction and belonging, racial profiling, and policing the state of exception, and pre-emptive counter-terrorism measures, community-based counter-terrorism measures, and restrictions to political engagement, freedom of speech, and hate speech. What makes this work distinct is its advancement of an original framework, the Concentrationary Gothic, to delineate the racialised mechanisms of terror involved in the governance of Muslim populations in the war on terror context. The book illuminates the various ways in which Muslims in Britain experience terror through racialised surveillance and policing strategies operating at state, group, inter- and intra- and individual levels in diverse contexts such as the street, workplace, public transport, and the home. Abbas situates these experiences within wider racial politics and theory, drawing connections to anti-Semitism, anti-blackness, anti-Irishness, and whiteness, to provide a complex mapping of the ways in which racial terror has operated in both historical and contemporary contexts of colonialism slavery and the camp and offering a unique point of analysis through the use of Gothic tropes of haunting monstrosity and abjection This vital work will be of interest to students and scholars across sociology criminology anthropology terrorism studies Islamic studies and critical Muslim studies researching race and racialisation security immigration nationhood and citizenship

Bigotry, Football and Scotland John Flint, John Kelly, 2013-06-30 A multidisciplinary analysis of sectarianism and bigotry in Scottish football Sectarianism and bigotry are among the most publicly debated issues in Scotland often reported in the newspapers as the shame of Scotland's national game The current crisis in Scottish football includes high profile controversies and disorder related to bigotry and sectarianism which resulted in new legislation to tackle offensive behaviour in and beyond football grounds In this collection contributors from a range of disciplinary positions present the latest empirical research evidence and social theory to examine and debate fundamental issues about bigotry in Scottish football and society The topic has raised many questions How should sectarianism and bigotry be defined and understood What are the experiences and impacts of bigotry on different populations in Scotland Are recent events unique or do they have historic precedents and contemporary comparisons beyond Scotland What should be the response of government football authorities clubs football supporters and other institutions and organisations in Scotland regarding legislation What vision should we have for a future Scottish society and its diverse population Bigotry Football and Scotland will appeal to all those interested in Scotland's national game the role of football in the 21st Century and how multicultural contemporary societies attempt to resolve prejudice and promote diversity

Brokering Servitude Andrew Urban, 2017-12-26 The history of domestic labor markets in 19th century America From the era of Irish Famine migration to the passage of quota restrictions in the 1920s household domestic service was the single largest employer of women in the United States and in California a pivotal occupation for male Chinese immigrants Servants of both sexes accounted for eight percent of the total labor force about one million people In Brokering Servitude Andrew Urban offers a history of these domestic servants focusing on how Irish immigrant women Chinese immigrant men and American born black women navigated the domestic labor market in the nineteenth century a market in which they were forced to grapple with powerful racial and gendered discrimination Through vivid examples like how post famine Irish immigrants were enlisted to work as servants in exchange for relief this book examines how race citizenship and the performance of domestic labor relate to visions of American expansion Because household service was undesirable work stigmatized as unfree brokers were integral to steering and compelling women men and children into this labor By the end of the nineteenth century the federal government became a major broker of domestic labor through border controls and immigration officials became important actors in dictating which workers were available for domestic labor and under what conditions they could be contracted Drawing on a range of sources from political cartoons to immigrant case files to novels Brokering Servitude connects Asian immigration European immigration and internal black migration The book ultimately demonstrates the ways in which employers pitted these groups against each other in competition for not only servant positions but also certain forms of social inclusion offering important insights into an oft overlooked area of American history

Postcolonialism Revisited Kirsti Bohata, 2009-06-15 Postcolonialism Revisited is a ground breaking book the first to explore and analyse Anglophone Welsh writing both literary and otherwise in the context of contemporary thinking about colonial and post colonial cultures. Kirsti Bohata considers how far the paradigms of postcolonial theory may be usefully adopted and adapted to provide an illuminating exploration of Welsh writing in English while simultaneously considering the challenges that such writing might offer to the field of postcolonial theory.

Building the Modern Church Robert Proctor, 2016-05-23 Fifty years after the Second Vatican Council architectural historian Robert Proctor examines the transformations in British Roman Catholic church architecture that took place in the two decades surrounding this crucial event. Inspired by new thinking in theology and changing practices of worship and by a growing acceptance of modern art and architecture architects designed radical new forms of church building in a campaign of new buildings for new urban contexts. A focussed study of mid twentieth century church architecture Building the Modern Church considers how architects and clergy constructed the image and reality of the Church as an institution through its buildings. The author examines changing conceptions of tradition and modernity and the development of a modern church architecture that drew from the ideas of the liturgical movement. The role of Catholic clergy as patrons of modern architecture and art and the changing attitudes of the Church and its architects to modernity are examined explaining how different strands of post war architecture were adopted in the field of ecclesiastical buildings. The church building's social role in defining communities through rituals and symbols is also considered together with the relationships between churches and modernist urban planning in new towns and suburbs. Case studies analysed in detail include significant buildings and architects that have remained little known until now. Based on meticulous historical research in primary sources theoretically informed fully referenced and thoroughly illustrated this book will be of interest to anyone concerned with the church architecture art and theology of this period.
