Grassland Sciences in Northern China National Research Council, Policy and Global Affairs, Office of International Affairs, Committee on Scholarly Communication with the People's Republic of China, 1992-02-01 This volume describes one of the most extensive grassland ecosystems and the efforts of Chinese scientists to understand it. Leading Chinese scientists attribute the decline in China's grasslands to overgrazing and excessive cultivation of marginal areas and discuss measures to limit the damage. The book gives its view on the Chinese approach to the study of grasslands and the relevance of this activity in China to global scientific concerns.

Ecotones Between Forest and Grassland Randall W. Myster, 2012-07-10 Ecotones are dynamic overlapping boundary areas where major terrestrial biomes meet. As past studies have shown and as the chapters in this book will illustrate, their structure, size, and scope have changed considerably over the millennia, expanding and shrinking as climate and/or other driving conditions also changed. Today, however, many of them are changing at a rate not seen for a long time, perhaps largely due to climate change and other human-induced factors. Indeed, ecotones are more sensitive to climate change than the biomes on either side and thus may serve as critical early indicators of future climate change. As ecotones change, they also redefine the limits of the biomes on either side by altering their distributions of species, because in addition to their own endemic species, any ecotone will also have species from both adjoining biomes. Consequently, they may also be places of high levels of species interaction, serving as active evolutionary laboratories which generate new species that then migrate back into adjacent biomes. Ecotones Between Forest and Grassland explores how these ecotones have changed in the past, how they are changing today, and how they are likely to change in the future. The book includes chapters from around the world with a special focus on South American and Neotropical ecotones.

California Grasslands Mark R. Stromberg, Jeffrey D. Corbin, Carla D'Antonio, 2007-12-03 This highly synthetic and scholarly work brings together new and important scientific contributions by leading experts on a rich diversity of topics concerning the history, ecology, and conservation of California's endangered grasslands. The editors and authors have succeeded admirably in drawing from a great wealth of recent research to produce a widely accessible and compelling state-of-the-art treatment of this fascinating subject. Anyone interested in Californian biodiversity or grassland ecosystems in general will find this book to be an invaluable resource and a major inspiration for further research, management, and restoration efforts. Bruce G. Baldwin, W. L. Jepson, Professor and Curator, UC Berkeley. Grasses and grasslands are among the most important elements of the California landscape. This is their book, embodying the kind of integrated view needed for all ecological communities in California. Approaches ranging across an incredibly broad spectrum: paleontology and human history, basic science and practical management techniques, systematics, community ecology, physiology, and genetics. Physical factors such as water, soil, nutrients, atmospheric, and fire; biological factors such as competition, symbiosis, and grazing are nicely tied together due to careful editorial work. This is an indispensable reference for everyone interested in the California environment. Brent Mishler, Director of the University and Jepson Herbaria and Professor of Integrative Biology, UC Berkeley. The structure and function of California grasslands have intrigued ecologists for decades The editors of this volume have assembled a comprehensive set of reviews by a group of outstanding authors on the natural history structure management and restoration of this economically and ecologically important ecosystem Scott L Collins Professor of Biology University of New Mexico New York Supreme Court , General Technical Report RMRS ,1998 Herd Register American Guernsey Cattle Club,1905 The Herd Register of the American Guernsey Cattle Club American Guernsey Cattle Club,1910 Jacaranda Geography Alive 9 Victorian Curriculum, 3e learnON and Print Jill Price,2025-11-24
