

The background of the cover is a photograph of railroad tracks stretching from the bottom center towards a bright, hazy horizon. The tracks are made of wooden ties and metal rails, and they converge as they recede into the distance. The sky is a mix of blue and orange, suggesting a sunrise or sunset. The overall mood is one of vastness and journey.

Marian Forrester is the emblematic blossom of the Old American West. She draws her quality from that strong establishment, carrying joy and excellence to her older spouse to the community of Sweet Water, where they live to the prairie land itself and the youthful storyteller of her story, Neil Herbert. All are beguiled by her splendor and effortlessness, and all are eventually sold out. For Marian yearns for life on any terms, and in satisfying herself, she loses all she adored and all who cherished her. This Willa Cather's absolute best novel isn't just a representation of a disturbing stunner; yet additionally, an eerie inspiration of an honorable age slipping permanently into the past.

She gained literary recognition for her novels such as O Pioneers! and My Antonia, which portrayed life on the frontier with deep emotional resonance. Through her writing, Cather explored themes of nostalgia, the human spirit, and the essence of the American experience.

Willa Cather Susie Thomas, 1990-01-01

Willa Cather's novels were neglected after her death, but a new generation of readers has greeted her work with enthusiasm. This feminist study, which draws extensively on Cather's unpublished letters, analyses how she overcame the difficulties which beset a woman writer in the mid-West during the early part of the century. It shows how her absorption in European culture influenced her perception of America and enabled her to produce some of the most compelling literature of modern times. Susie Thomas's highly readable account will be welcomed by all those studying Cather's work.

A Mirror in the Roadway Morris Dickstein, 2021-08-10

In a famous passage in The Red and the Black the French writer Stendhal described the novel as a mirror being carried along a roadway. In the twentieth century this was derided as a naïve notion of realism. Instead modern writers experimented with creative forms of invention and dislocation. Deconstructive theorists went even further questioning whether literature had any real reference to a world outside its own language while traditional historians challenged whether novels gave a trustworthy representation of history and society. In this book Morris Dickstein reinterprets Stendhal's metaphor and tracks the different worlds of a wide array of twentieth century writers from realists like Theodore Dreiser, Sinclair Lewis, Edith Wharton and Willa Cather through modernists like Franz Kafka and Samuel Beckett to wildly inventive postwar writers like Saul Bellow, Günter Grass, Mary McCarthy, George Orwell, Philip Roth and Gabriel García Márquez. Dickstein argues that fiction will always yield rich insight into its subject and that literature can also be a form of historical understanding. Writers refract the world through their forms and sensibilities. He shows how the work of these writers recaptures yet also transforms the life around them, the world inside them and the universe of language and feeling they share with their readers. Through lively and incisive essays directed to general readers as well as students of literature, Dickstein redefines the literary landscape, a landscape in which reading has for decades been devalued by society and distorted by theory. Having begun with a reconsideration of realism, the book concludes with several essays probing the strengths and limitations of a historical approach to literature and criticism.
