Modelling Trig Functions

Model any repeating real phenomenon that can be modelled using periodic trigonometric functions. For example, you can model the tides or the height on a Ferris wheel.

Example 1:

- (1) Write the equation of the wave function whose graph has the following characteristics.

- (2) Write the equation of the wave function whose period is  $\frac{1}{2}$  unit, amplitude of the cycle is 2 units.

Example 2:

The graph of  $f$  is a periodic continuous function.

Writing tips:

- (1) To determine the equation that models the function, complete the period  $\frac{1}{f}$  and the phase shift.
- (2) To determine the equation the graph you model, complete the amplitude, vertical shift, or the phase.
- (3) Cross your base phase period plus a maximum point, plus the period. The answer will cross the period value again, creating two maximum points and two points.
- (4) The maximum and minimum values will create two more points, the maximum and minimum and two points.
- (5)  $\frac{1}{f}$  times the period value, the period will be 1, half the maximum and minimum value.
