Modern China From Mandarin To Commissar:

Modern China Dun Jen Li, 1978 Explaining Chinese Democratization Shaohua Hu, 2000-01-30 Hu seeks to explain China's failure to establish a democratic system. He demonstrates both continuity and change in China's democratization process. Modern China regards power and wealth as primary goals and treats a strong state as a major means to these ends. Such a preference puts democracy on a back burner. Employing a theoretical framework which consists of five factors: historical legacies, local forces, the world system, socialist values, and economic development, Hu shows that while all of these factors were at work in all eras, each assumes a special significance in a particular period. Traditional China, before the 1911 Revolution, attempted to adjust itself to a new Western-dominated world. In the Republican era, the control of local forces topped the political agenda. Nationalist China sought to survive and develop in the world system, while Maoist China set for itself the task of building a socialist state. And of course, economic development has been the priority of the Deng era. As Hu shows, these five factors have had determining impacts on the long struggle for democracy in China.

Chen Jiongming and the Federalist Movement Leslie Chen, 1999 The local self-government movement in China began in the late Qing and by the Revolution of 1911, no less than five thousand self-government councils had formed around the country. While the idea of a federated state was cherished by early revolutionaries, a growing conflict between federalist and centralist leaders culminated in the defeat of federalism in the mid 1920s. The story of this movement has since remained hidden behind Nationalist and Communist accounts of the early revolutionary struggle. This study of Chen Jiongming's political career reopens the record on federalist efforts, focusing on Chen's policies and administrative achievements in Fujian and Guangdong. It describes Chen's role in the tumultuous politics of southern China from 1909 until his death in 1933, including his relationship and notorious break with Sun Yat-sen, the leader of the centralist revolutionaries. Leslie Chen argues that his father's attempts to create a democratic federalist system in Guangdong were aimed at providing a model for China as a whole. His account is lively and readable; it gives an intimate yet historically accurate account of Chen Jiongming's considerable role in early twentieth-century Chinese history. Leslie Chen was born in Guangdong, China. In 1988 he compiled A Collection of Historiographic Materials for a Biography of Chen Chiung-ming Jiongming 1878-1933. He has published two Chinese language biographies of Chen Jiongming.
