nor society nor laws to obey or rules to follow The Earth is dark cold and barren as the sun is unable to penetrate through the dense ash clouds Fed up by the constant clashes with other survivors fighting over access to food water fuel shelter and always in fear of yet another enemy common to them all residual units of government special forces genetically engineered semi human soldiers called Pongos they decide to head South in hopes of finding safety and peace On their journey across the continent their faction of twenty seven gradually grows to more than four hundred Most of those that join are small children teenagers and occasionally young adults With this their purpose gradually transforms from one of mere survival to one in which their existence becomes a pledge to preserve humanity and set the grounds for a new civilization One
