whether the media demonstrates a unifying or a well differentiated portrayal of the two groups The findings show that reporting on these groups is not as unbiased as many in Germany believe Drawing on frameworks including the needs based model of reconciliation the revised integrated threat theory and the model of acculturation strategies the book then discusses the implications for both journalistic reporting and broader social policies in support of a constructive encounter of dominant and non dominant groups in a diverse society This book will be of interest to scholars and students in the field of migration integration and intergroup relations as well as those in communication media studies and discourse analysis Just the
