Political Representation: Communities, Ideas and Institutions in Europe (c. 1200 - c. 1690), 2018-08-20 Political Representation Communities Ideas and Institutions in Europe c 1200 c 1690 a scholarly collection on representation in medieval and early modern Europe

opens up the field of institutional and parliamentary history to new paradigms of representation across a wide geography and chronology as testified by the volume's studies on assemblies ranging from Burgundy and Brabant to Ireland and Italy. The focus is on three areas: institutional developments of representative institutions in Western Europe; the composition of these institutions concerning interest groups and individual participants; and the ideological environment of representatives in time and space. By analysing the balance between bottom up and top down approaches to the functioning of institutions of representation by studying the actors behind the representative institutions, linking prosopographical research with changes in political dialogue and by exploring the ideological world of representation, this volume makes a key contribution to the historiography of pre-modern government and political culture. Contributors are: María Asenjo González, Wim Blockmans, Mario Damen, Coleman A. Dennehy, Jan Dumolyn, Marco Gentile, David Grummitt, Peter Hoppenbrouwers, Alastair J. Mann, Tim Neu, Ida Nijenhuis, Michael Penman, Graeme Small, Robert Stein and Marie Van Eeckenrode. See inside the book.

Representative Government in Modern Europe Gallagher, Laver, Mair, 2014-03-01 Representative Democracy in the EU Steven Blockmans, Sophia Russack, 2019-07-30. Representative democracy is beset by a crisis of legitimacy across the world but in Europe this crisis is compounded by the inadequacy of national governments to address citizens' frustrations and to achieve transnational unity on common issues. How representative are national parliaments in their decision making on EU matters? This volume investigates the relationship between the democratic institutions of the member states and those of the EU. With a focus on polity rather than policy, it looks at voting and decision shaping mechanisms in selected member states, in particular the Europeanisation of representative democracy at national level. It also assesses the state of parliamentary democracy at the EU level. Expert analysts share their insights into the changing nature of our political eco-systems and the disconnections within and between them. Representative Democracy in the EU: Recovering Legitimacy is part of the Towards a Citizens Union project, co-funded by the EU's Erasmus Programme. It is the product of collaboration with 20 renowned think tanks from the European Policy Institutes Network (EPIN). This volume follows the first in the series Direct Democracy in the EU: The Myth of a Citizens Union. A third and final publication will offer ideas for how democratic institutions and processes can meet the challenges facing Europe today. Research Handbook on Political Representation Maurizio Cotta, Federico Russo, 2020-12-25. At a time when political representation can be said to be facing its ultimate crisis, this crucial work clarifies the terms of the debate, providing an up-to-date analysis of the main conceptual and institutional controversies that have arisen surrounding this topic. Written by leading scholars in the field, contributions focus on how representation is conceptualised and its relation to democracy. Routledge Handbook of European Politics José Magone, 2014-12-17. Parliamentary Elites in Central and Eastern Europe Elena Semanova, Michael Edinger, Heinrich Best, 2013-12-13 Legislators are entrusted with key parliamentary functions and are important figures in the decision making process Their behaviour as political elites is as much responsible for the failures and successes of the new democracies as their institutional designs and constitutional reforms This book provides a comparative examination of representative elites and their role in democratic development in post communist Central and Eastern Europe CEE It argues that as the drivers of the transformation process in CEE individual and collective parliamentary actors matter The authors provide an in depth analysis of representatives from eleven national parliaments and explore country specific features of recruitment and representation They draw on an integrated dataset of parliamentary elites for individual party family and parliamentary variables over the 20 years following the collapse of Communism and develop a common framework for the analysis of variations in democratisation and political professionalisation between parliaments and political parties party families across CEE This unique volume will be of interest to students and scholars of comparative politics elite research post communist politics democratisation legislative studies and parliamentary representation European Politics Jan-Erik Lane, Svante Ersson, 1996-08-19 This comprehensive textbook is the first to go beyond a West European perspective and provide a clear overview of the whole of European politics Jan Erik Lane and Svante Ersson address the similarities of key political features among states in Western Central Eastern Northern and Southern Europe and look forward to political developments at the turn of the century Traditionally books have polarized Europe by focusing on points of divergence European Politics provides a thoroughgoing analysis of several converging themes including political culture the nature of the state party systems and the formation of government and public policies With this approach to economic social and political aspects of politics in Europe this major text presents a Europe that within the context of reform transition and integration has more in common in the early 1990s than ever before With a clear thematic structure and helpful discussions of data drawn from some 30 countries European Politics offers both an accessible and genuinely comparative text which will be essential reading for student and researcher alike Learning to Govern Together in Representative Democracy Thomas König, Xiao Lu, Thiago N. Silva, 2025-04-29 Learning to Govern Together in Representative Democracy introduces a dynamic theory on coalition governance and circular regression for studying joint policy making of coalition parties which considers the pro tempore

nature of representative democracy Because representative democracy limits the time to govern the implementation of a common policy agenda is temporarily constrained In parliamentary democracies in which coalition governance is the rule this temporal constraint demands that coalition parties overcome their collective action problems in joint policy making within a term This book argues that the cooperative and competitive incentives of coalition parties vary over time In the beginning of a term coalition parties only have a prior belief about the type of partnership and ministerial office holders who are responsible for the implementation of a common policy agenda do not know how many bills they will initiate and whether their partner will respond cooperatively or competitively to their bill proposals Over time however they can learn this type from experienced interactions in joint policy making to optimize the timing of further bill initiation To derive propositions and hypotheses on timing of bill initiation the authors distinguish two learning models a portfolio model with autonomous learning from experienced interactions within the own jurisdiction and a partisan model with considering experienced interactions of co partisan office holders The empirical examination of these models for the timing of bill initiation covers 11 parliamentary democracies in which about 25 000 government bills were initiated and immediately approved or scrutinized in parliament The findings show that ministerial office holders infer the type of partnership from the duration of parliamentary scrutiny and initiate further bill proposals either early if they learned about a cooperative type that immediately approved their bills or late if they learned about a competitive type that subjected their bills to intense parliamentary scrutiny The results further reveal variation across the periods of a term in which the cooperative and competitive incentives of coalition parties vary due to the temporal constraints for representative democracy The book provides an understanding of the dynamics of coalition effectiveness stability of coalition government and satisfaction with coalition governance which are determined by learning about the cooperative or competitive partnership type portfolio or partisan learning and the early or late timing of bill initiation Comparative Politics is a series for researchers teachers and students of political science that deals with contemporary government and politics Global in scope books in the series are characterized by a stress on comparative analysis and strong methodological rigour The series is published in association with the European Consortium for Political Research For more information visit www.ecprnet.eu The series is edited by Nicole Bolleyer Chair of Comparative Political Science Geschwister Scholl Institut LMU Munich and Jonathan Slapin Professor of Political Institutions and European Politics Department of Political Science University of Zurich This is an open access title available under the terms of a CC BY NC ND 4.0 International licence It is free to read at Oxford Scholarship Online and offered as a free PDF download from OUP and selected open access locations
