Handbook of Gender, Culture, and Health
 Richard M. Eisler, Michel Hersen, 2012-10-02 This Handbook illustrates how gender, ethnicity, age, and even sexual orientation and understanding influence the health practices and risk factors for health problems in diverse groups of people. Contributions from leading researchers in psychology, health, and epidemiology provide an interdisciplinary approach to the topic. In addition to epidemiological issues, this book discusses the view that public health policy and programs must be individually tailored to specific groups to maximize their effectiveness. Part I deals with the effects of stress on the health of diverse populations. Part II of the book raises the issues of varied health risk factors and health practices for different cultural and socioeconomic groups. Part III examines specific health problems and issues common to women and men of varying ethnicity. The last section deals with the health problems of specific populations. Featuring the latest information for understanding how diverse groups of people perceive and respond to issues relating to their health, this Handbook should prove to be a valuable resource to a wide range of practitioners and researchers in psychology, medicine, psychiatry, sociology, social work, nursing, exercise science, and counseling.

Recent Developments in Alcoholism
 Marc Galanter, 2013-11-22 From the President of the Research Society on Alcoholism. In recent years, increasingly convincing evidence in support of a biobehavioral conceptual model of the etiology of alcoholism has emerged. In this model, the disorder is perceived as arising from the interaction of genetic/biological vulnerability and psychosocial risk. Drinking or alcohol seeking is a metric trait. Alcoholism, which is a state of abnormally intense alcohol seeking behavior that over time leads to the alcohol dependence syndrome, lies at the extreme high end of this quantitative measure. Metric traits are influenced by multiple genes; the extent of genetic loading of biological risk for alcoholism would be different in different individuals. Added to this kind of variability is the wide range of options for exposure to the psychosocial risk factors of heavy drinking provided by modern society. Further environmental provocation also changes when life events change. It is not surprising, therefore, from the combination of the kinds of genetic and environmental variability described above that there is a wide array of patterns of expression of the disorder, alcoholism, referred to by some as alcoholisms. In the search for understanding of underlying mechanisms and rational bases for potential therapy it is important to focus our attention on the final common pathway of this disorder alcohol seeking behavior This series ever since its beginning in 1983 has been sensitive to the complexities of the interaction between biological and psychosocial risk factors in alcoholism Evaluating Alcohol and Drug Abuse Treatment Effectiveness Linda Carter Sobell, Mark B. Sobell, Elliott Ward, 2013-10-22 Evaluating Alcohol and Drug Abuse Treatment Effectiveness Recent Advances is a collection of papers that covers the advancement in rehabilitation of individuals with a history of substance abuse The title aims to find ways in identifying the treatment that best fits a specific patient The text first provides a historical account of alcohol and drug treatment outcome research Next the selection considers the use of multiple measures of life health to assess alcohol treatment Chapter 3 deals with the behavioral assessment and treatment evaluation of narcotic addiction while Chapter 4 talks about the evaluation of behavioral and traditional treatment of alcoholics The fifth chapter tackles the contingency contracting with drug abusers and the sixth chapter covers the development of a prototype for the evaluation of alcohol treatment The text also details the problems in alcohol treatment along with the improvement of confidence in treatment of substance abuse The book will be of great use to behavioral scientists social workers and mental health specialists Biomedicalization of Alcohol Studies Lorraine Midanik, 2011-12-31 Biomedicalization is seen as the natural outgrowth of continued scientific progress a movement towards improving the quality and quantity of life through scientific inquiries using biomedical perspectives and methods This approach carries with it the assumption that with proper risk assessment detection and treatment our lives can be lengthened improved and indeed more fulfilling Yet critics question biomedicalization s ability to deliver There is concern about how biomedicalization can change our traditional concepts of health as we discover more conditions for which we are at risk and health maintenance is seen as the responsibility of the individual The purpose of the book is to describe assess and critique biomedicalization and its influence as a larger social trend on the health field and specifically in the area of alcohol research policy and programs Chapter 1 gives a broad overview of biomedicalization Chapter 2 lays the groundwork for a historical understanding of how medicalization and biomeidcalization have developed and are expressed in diverse fields such as aging psychiatry mental health and women s health Chapter 3 focuses in depth on alcoholism and assesses the development and assumptions underlying the two movements that have greatly influenced the substance abuse field the medicalization of deviance and the growth of the disease model of alcoholism Chapter 4 discusses the origins and development of the National Institute on Alcohol Abuse and Alcoholism NIAAA from its inception in 1970 Chapter 5 illustrates the growing biomedicalization that has occurred in the alcohol field prior to NIAAA s movement to the National Institute of Health NIH Chapter 6 assesses how Sweden has handled alcohol problems and currently funds alcohol research Chapter 7 concludes with a rationale for an expanded discourse between social scientists and biomedical researchers working on social problems particularly alcohol issues This volume will stimulate discussion of the processes by which social problems and specifically alcohol issues are framed managed and studied It will hold particular interest for researchers and students in the areas of alcohol studies social science and social welfare Lorraine Midanik is a professor in the School of Social Welfare University of California Berkeley

Behavioural Models in Psychopharmacology Paul Willner, 1991-02-21 Behavioural models in psychopharmacology are used for different purposes The main concern of industrial psychopharmacologists is specifically to develop new and improved drugs for the treatment of mental disorders while basic scientists use animal models to investigate the underlying nature of such conditions The important distinction between these different perspectives is made explicit for the first time in this book By considering such conditions as anxiety depression mania and schizophrenia feeding disorders dementia and drug dependence this book provides a comprehensive and critical review of the adequacy of the behavioural procedures used by psychopharmacologists to model psychiatric disorders Graduate students and research workers in psychopharmacology from both academic and industrial spheres as well as clinicians will find this book of considerable interest
